Congress Hurrying Up On Legislation Before GOP Convention Starts

Measures Include 60 Billions for Farm, Military and Social Security Items

Remember 1948

Sine Die Adjournment Called Wrong With War, Strike On

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Another feverish day of legislating lay ahead of Congress today before it shuts up shop on the eve of the Republican national convention.

Before adjournment, tonight or earlier, the lawmakers still had to jam through appropriations totaling almost 60 billion dollars. Agreement also had to be reached on measures boosting social security payments, bolstering farm price supports and authorizing far-flung military construction projects.

Plan Sine Die

Administration leaders planned for a sine die adjournment, meaning that the law-making days of the 82nd Congress would be over unless President Truman should call it back in special session.

Some Republican senators, and a few Democrats, favored recessing until a fixed date, or at least giving congressional leaders authority to call another session.

Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, the Republican floor leader, told a reporter that GOP members were divided among themselves on the issue and had not decided whether to fight a sine die adjournment.

One viewpoint was summed up by Sen. Williams (R.-Del.), who said that "it's not right for Congress to adjourn sine die with the Korean war and the steel strike on."

Recall Truman Action

Republicans were not unmindful either of how President Truman in 1948 called the GOP-controlled Congress into a special session after his nomination at the Democratic national convention and went on to campaign against what he called its "do-nothing" record.

But Senate Democratic Leader McFarland of Arizona said he saw no reason why a final adjournment should not be taken. House leaders were in agreement, he added.

At a rare Fourth of July session yesterday, Congress passed bills left and right. In many cases no copies of the measures or committee explanations of them were available to the lawmakers.

The confusion was so great at times in the Senate that some members protested vigorously. Sen. McCarran (D.-Nev.) said that in his 20 years in Congress "this is the most disorderly way to enact legislation that I've witnessed."

Benefit for Korea Vets

Among the measures sped to the White House was a new GI Bill of Rights for Korean war veterans. It provides education, mustering-out and loan benefits that would cost about one billion dollars a year.

Also sent to the President was a compromise measure designed to bring about a $1,395,000,000 expansion of the defense housing program.

A compromise $46,600,000,000 military spending bill was passed by the House and now goes before the Senate for action. It contains the full amount asked by the President to expand the air force to 143 wings by mid-1955.

The huge money bill, the largest of all the appropriations measures for the 1953 fiscal year that started Tuesday, also provides

Liner United States Bound for Record Crossing of Ocean

Aboard the S.S. United States, July 5 (AP)—The new American liner United States appeared on the way to a new transatlantic speed record today after averaging 34.11 knots the first day of her maiden voyage to Europe.

Comdr. Harry Manning, the ship's master, reported yesterday that the super-liner covered 696 nautical miles in 20 hours, 24 minutes after leaving Ambrose Light, just outside New York harbor.

This was 16 more nautical miles than the British liner Queen Mary sailed the first day of her record crossing in August, 1938. The Mary did the full trip in three days, 20 hours, 46 minutes, for an average speed of 31.69 knots.

The average speed racked up by the United States yesterday was equivalent to almost 40 miles an hour on land. A nautical mile is 1.19 statute miles.

City Spends One Of Its Quietest Holidays Friday

Motorcycle Patrolman Burger Is Injured When Cycle Hits Croquet Ball

With the exception of a few scattered firecrackers Kingston enjoyed one of the quietest Fourths on record yesterday.

No vehicular accidents were reported despite streams of traffic flowing through the city all day and many local families taking to the roads with picnic baskets.

Isadore Lippman of 87 Pearl street reported to police that as he was coming out of the New York Bakery on East Union street at 9:20 a. m. a firecracker was thrown from a car and exploded in his left ear. He said that he chased the car as far as Connelly road and managed to get the license number.

Check Fireworks

A croquet ball caused a freak accident at 11:30 a. m. Friday at the municipal stadium when the front wheel of a motorcycle operated by Guernsey Burger, Jr., struck the ball and flung Burger over the handlebars. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Alderman-at-large Joe Kelly where he was X-rayed, treated and discharged. Burger suffered bruises, a slight cut on his forehead and a small lump on his left arm.

Police investigated three complaints of fireworks during the late afternoon and evening yesterday. The first call came at 6:50 p. m. to the vicinity of 77 West Pierpont street, the second at 7:40 p. m. to the vicinity of 55 Gill street and the third at 11:10 p. m. to Broadway and Union street where Officers George Loughran and Frank Loeffler dispersed a "gang" shooting off fireworks.

Brilliant Water Show Closes Run Tonight

Tonight is the last for the Water Follies of 1952 sponsored at municipal stadium by the Kingston Uniformed Firemen's Association, and a capacity crowd is anticipated for the fast-moving program packed with glamorous bathing beauty scenes, plenty of spectacular high-diving, swimming feats and an extra amount of rollicking comedy starring Eddie Rose, premier funny man of the splash and splatter world.

Rose lives up to his top rating at the stadium show, and many a patron returning to the big grandstand for "another look" admitted that Eddie was the chief reason for a second visit to the ballpark, not to mention, of course, the bevy of Aquaballerinas, personifications of grace and beauty in their striking bathing costumes.

Swimming styles, diving technique, and all the features offered at the world's greatest water shows are to be seen at the stadium, with a first-rate stage show presenting singers, dancers and comedians, whose performances make for a varied and well-balanced program.

Although the crowd at the first day's showing was not up to expectations, those who enjoyed the stellar attractions told so many of their friends that last night more than 1,000 were in the stand, and tonight's finale at 8:30 is expected to fill the stadium.

No UN Losses Are Reported by 5th Air Force on Holiday

Seoul, Korea, July 5 (AP)—United Nations pilots destroyed or damaged 21 Communist jets and leveled a big Red military school without losing a single plane in a Fourth of July raid near the Manchurian border, the U. S. Fifth Air Force reported today.

About 70 U. S. Thunderjet fighter-bombers hurled explosives and flaming gasoline on a large headquarters building and barracks structures at the school, 20 miles south of the Yalu river. Intelligence reports estimated 1,500 Communist officer candidates were to have been graduated there this month.

12 MIGs Destroyed

Eighty-five American Sabre jets ripped into formations of 115 Russian-built MIG-15s bent on thwarting the strike.

The fast Sabres bagged their second highest toll of MIGs for any single day of the war, the air force said—12 destroyed, two probably destroyed and seven damaged.

The air force said camera film had confirmed 10 kills, one probable and four damaged.

Sabre pilots last December 13 shot down 13 MIGs.

The Fourth of July battle ended a week in which no allied planes were lost over North Korea, the air force said. It was the first such week since last August.

Fires Rage

The only reported Communist losses of the week were the 21 MIGs destroyed or damaged in yesterday's encounter.

"Fires were raging all over as we withdrew, with black smoke spiralling up from the ruins of flattened buildings," said Lt. William H. Scott Jr. of St. Petersburg, Fla., last man over the target.

Other U. S. Air Force and Marine, Royal Australian, South Korean and South African planes joined in attacks on the Reds' North Korean supply system yesterday. The air force said night bombers knocked out 41 supply vehicles Friday.

Rough Ground Action

Allied pilots claimed they killed 45 Communists in three air strikes against enemy troop positions near Panmunjom.

The U. S. Eighth Army said the roughest ground action was in the same area. Defenders of an allied outpost forced Communist attackers to withdraw after an hour's exchange of grenade and small arms fire early today.

Heaviest artillery exchange was on the "Old Baldy" and "T-Bone" hill sector near Chorwon on the western front.

Long Peace Talk

Munsan, Korea, July 5 (AP)—Korean armistice negotiators held their longest session in weeks today on the thorny prisoner repatriation issue, then set another secret meeting for tomorrow.

Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, UN command spokesman, emerged from the 70-minute session at Panmunjom and indicated the talks were proceeding in business-like fashion.

"There was no apparent raising of voices inside the tent," he said.

The Communists requested the secret meetings. This means correspondents are not given details of what takes place in the conference tent. Newsmen have never been permitted to attend the sessions.

Compulsory Labor

Berlin, July 5 (AP)—The West Berlin newspaper Telegraf reported today the east zone Communist government has put into effect sweeping decrees making virtually every fit east German liable for compulsory labor.

$70,000 Phone Project to Give North Kingston 150 Party Lines

In north Kingston, 150 or more party-line customers will get the individual-line service they have requested, by the end of the year, C. E. Burnett, New York Telephone Company manager here, said today.

"All this will be made possible by the installation of a mile of underground cable and eight miles of overhead cable along Foxhall avenue and Route 9W," the manager said.

Burnett added that this is a $70,000 project, undertaken to help meet the development of the north Kingston section where the population has doubled in three years.

"We are pushing similar construction projects throughout the state to meet the need, despite high costs," he said, adding that before inflation the north Kingston job would have amounted to only a little over $40,000.

Wicks One of First GOPs in Chicago

Many From State Sectors Leave on Special Train Today for Parley

Arthur H. Wicks, state Senate majority leader and delegate to the Republican National Convention, left for Chicago by airplane on Thursday, arriving ahead of the bulk of the state's 96-member delegation.

The district's other delegate is former State Senator Frederic H. Bontecou of Millbrook in Dutchess county. Alternates are Henry M. James of Hudson and Neal Brandow of West Coxsackie.

Three to Fly Out

Three local attorneys are planning to fly to Chicago tomorrow to attend convention sessions as observers. They are N. LeVan Haver, Republican city chairman; John Egan and John L. Larkin.

Most of the state's delegates will leave today aboard the 13-car Empire State Victory Special on the New York Central Railroad. The train is scheduled to leave New York at 2:45 p. m. with the bulk of the delegation, picking up other delegates at Albany, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo.

300th Anniversary Art Show Will Open Here July 16

Invitations were received in the mails this week by a large group of Ulster county citizens to the opening ceremonies of Kingston's 300th Anniversary Art Show at the George Washington School, Wednesday, July 16, at 8 p. m.

In addition to a preview of the show, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Maxim Karolik and Robert C. Vose, Jr., noted art collectors of Boston, will participate.

The Art Show Committee states that attendance at this function is by no means limited to persons who have received a notification by mail. The public is invited.

The art show is the culmination of a dream toward which Mrs. Emily C. Chadbourne has striven for many years. Mrs. Chadbourne, a benefactress of the city of Kingston in many instances over the past several years, has always hoped that priceless and significant works of art might be brought to local citizens so they might have the same advantages heretofore enjoyed only by residents of New York, Boston, Paris and Vienna.

Exhibit Worth $150,000

It is only because of Mrs. Chadbourne's friendship with some of the foremost art collectors of the country that this exhibit, valued in excess of $150,000, has been arranged for Kingston. Many of the works have never before, and probably never again will be, publicly exhibited.

Mrs. Chardbourne, herself a recognized authority on American art, has also prevailed upon Karolik and Vose to speak on the significance and the background of the exhibit on the opening night.

Many of the paintings are from the private collection of Karolik, who has dedicated a lifetime to collecting works which clearly indicate the emergence and trends of a native American art form from the very beginnings of this country. The Boston Museum of Fine Arts broke all precedent several years ago by building a new wing to the museum especially to house intact a collection of American art covering the period 1720 to 1820, donated to that institution by Mrs and Mrs. Karolik.

Hudson Valley Art

Vose, an art authority and director of the Vose Galliers in Boston, has spent the greater part of this year in assembling a group of paintings of familiar scenes in the Hudson valley, or by painters who resided in the valley. While everyone is familiar with the fact that the "Hudson River School" influenced artistic techniques and thought internationally for almost

Local Vet Office Has GI Bill Data

Congress Is Due to Pass Law This Week for New Benefits

Information about the new GI Bill for Korean veterans now pending in Congress may be obtained from the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency, 32 Main street, Kingston, or at branch offices in Ellenville, Highland, Kerhonkson or Saugerties.

It was pointed out yesterday by Leo V. Lanning, director of the New York State Division of Veterans Affairs, that Korean veterans are being discharged from the armed forces at the rate of 35,000 a month, of which ten per cent are from New York state. He said that both houses of Congress are expected to reach agreement on the bill during the ensuing week.

Extends Aid

The measure will extend to Korean veterans educational and loan guarantee benefits, mustering out pay, employment assistance and other benefits similar to those provided for World War 2 veterans, Lanning said.

Lanning, who is a member of the New York State Civil Defense Commission, also pointed out the urgent need for more than 70,000 additional volunteers to fill vacancies in the state Ground Observation Corps. Beginning Monday, July 14, the state's 605 posts and four filter centers will be organized on a 24-hour basis.

Persons interested in volunteering their services may obtain further information at local offices of the Veteran's Service Agencies or Civil Defense, Lanning pointed out.

Three Million Project Planned at Stewart AFB

A $3,520,000 project for the Stewart Air Force Base at Newburgh is included in the revised military construction bill totaling $52,904,000 on which the Senate and House are expected to act today in Washington, the Associated Press reported this morning.

The compromise measure, providing for a total expenditure of $2,396,302,800 in the United States and overseas, was approved last night by a Senate-House conference committee appointed to work out differences between bills approved by the two Houses.

The Senate cut out two proposed army projects in New York. One called for expenditure of $77,000 at Fort Tilden, Rockaway Park, the other $352,000 for Fort Wadsworth on Staten Island.

Says He's Through

Pusan, Korea, July 5 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said today a presidential election will be held as soon as possible and added he does 'not wish to run and I want the people to understand this." Government officials however, expressed belief that the 77-year-old president would accept re-election.

Virginia Couple Gets TV Trip To Kingston on Honeymoon

A bride and groom from Richmond, Va., will spend their honeymoon in Kingston during the week of the 300th Anniversary pageant, beginning Wednesday, July 23.

Immediately after their marriage on a Columbia Broadcasting Company TV show Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson Turnley will be brought to this city in a 1952 Pontiac automobile that will be placed at their disposal during their five-day stay here.

Through John F. Kinerk, executive secretary of the New York Hotel Association, the American Hotel Corporation, of which the Governor Clinton is a member, was able to arrange for the local honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Turnley are expected to attend the opening of the Kingston Historical Pageant on Wednesday, July 23, and will be officially welcomed and presented with a key to the city by Mayor Oscar Newkirk.

A comprehensive program is being arranged for the honeymoon couple.

The bride and groom show is televised five days a week by CBS-TV on 34 coast-to-coast stations at 11:15 a. m. Sponsor is General Mills.

A photographer from Pennington's Studio will take pictures of the couple arriving at the Governor Clinton Hotel and during the week. At the end of the honeymoon, the couple will be given a honeymoon album by Pennington's Studio.

Taft Surge Faces Hot Challenge From Texas In Support of General

GOP Troubled With Rights Too

Sprague Predicts Ike Will Win Dispute on Barring Delegates From Voting

Hard on Taft

Eisenhower Supporters Say Their Fight Is Only Beginning

Chicago, July 5 (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft's Texas-borne surge toward the Republican presidential nomination faced a blistering challenge today from supporters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The two major contenders, arriving here during the day, were ready to take over personal direction of a round-by-round battle in next week's convention for the 604 votes needed to give one of them the party's nomination.

Taft's chief lieutenants told a reporter they expect him to decide whether he will shoot the political works on an attempt to win a first ballot nomination.

J. Russel Sprague, New York national committeeman and an Eisenhower backer, predicted in an interview the general will win by a 50-vote margin a convention rules test on the question of barring disputed delegates from voting on the seating of contested groups.

For Taft, any such result would represent the first major setback in a week of pre-convention activities which has seen him—backed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and supported indirectly by former President Herbert Hoover—sweep to within 74 votes of the needed nomination total in The Associated Press tabulation.

This scoreboard includes contested delegates awarded to Taft by the Republican National Committee. Since the committee's decisions are being appealed, only the events of next week can determine just how high Taft's total will be.

The Count

As of now, the count showed: Taft 530, Eisenhower 427, other candidates 131, still uncommitted 118. To win, a candidate must have 604 votes.

The Ohioan increased his lead yesterday when the Republican National Committee voted 60 to 41 to accept the senator's personally-devised compromise of the explosive dispute over 38 Texas delegates.

Despite repeated cries by Eisenhower's supporters that a "steal" had been engineered in the Lone Star state, the committee voted to give Taft 22 of the delegates and assign 16 of them to Eisenhower.

This was exactly what Taft had proposed earlier in the day and what Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, national campaign manager for Eisenhower, had rejected as a "compromise with fraud."

Just Begun to Fight

Lodge, Sprague and other Eisenhower leaders made it clear quickly that they had only begun to fight. They said they will carry their high voltage protests to the credentials committee and to the convention floor itself.

This indiciated it might be several days before the delegates would get around to voting on a nominee, with television cameras looking at the cast kept off the screens in yesterday's committee meeting.

The first big test in the convention battling will come on Lodge's proposal to bar any contested delegate from voting on any contest over a convention seat.

Sprague said the Eisenhower backers concede in advance they can't prevent the delegates seated temporarily by the national committee from voting on this Lodge proposal.

All told the national committee

Port Ewen Corps Wins First Prize

The Port Ewen Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps added another trophy to its case of prizes July 4 when it marched in the parade at Warwick for the firemen's celebration.

It was a first prize the corps won, and along with the trophy went the plaudits of spectators, who called the marching group one of the best musical units they had ever seen.

Says Doughboys To Remain Vital Factor in Combat

Korean War Veteran Tells Kiwanis Infantry Marks Progress Despite New Methods

In spite of all the new methods of warfare, the infantry soldiers' forward foxholes "continue to mark our progress toward victory," Major O. E. Smith, combat infantry officer, said in an address before the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday.

Major Smith returned to this country six months ago after a year in Korea. He is at present assistant chief of staff, G-1, to Major General Frederick Irving, commandant of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. During World War 2, he served two years in Italy.

In a tribute to the infantry, Major Smith predicted that the ground troops will always remain the decisive factor in war.

"The infantry soldier carries the fight to the enemy on the ground. It is his duty to seize the ground and hold it," he said.

Is Trained Technician

Reviewing the history of the infantry from early Greek and Roman times to the present, Major Smith said that the foot soldier of today must have "brains as well as guts." Although he is "still a marching doughboy, today he must also be a trained technician," he said, pointing out that the infantryman now must master a large number of special weapons, and that some of them are specialists in flying grasshopper planes and in "jockeying tanks."

Major Smith said our soldiers were unprepared when they entered Korea, many of them being under the impression that as soon as the North Koreans saw the U. S. Army they would give up.

The speaker was introduced by Christopher Morris, who arranged the program for Thursday's Kiwanis meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Following his talk, Major Smith remained to answer questions from the floor.

Sets Chute Record

Grand Prairie, Tex., July 5 (AP)—A stubborn, pug-faced stuntman bucked buffeting winds for almost 24 hours to set a new marathon parachute jumping record. Neal Stewart, 27, Birmingham, Ala., toppled from a small plane 124 times yesterday in 23 hours, 35 minutes. The old record was 123 jumps in a 24-hour period by John W. Swedish of Iowa.

Only Promises Are Received From Committee Room

Chicago, July 5 (AP)—Republican platform architects admitted unhappily today they are having trouble with their plan on civil rights.

In recent years this convention headache has afflicted mostly the Democrats but now it's bothering the GOP as well.

Sen. Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado, chairman of the platform committee, told this reporter he now has rough drafts from 10 or 11 subcommittees, "all except civil rights."

"If we don't get one from the subcommittee then the full committee will have to write it," the Coloradan added.

Millikin still tried to keep a tight cover on details of the 1952 platform but other committee sources provided this version:

All members on the civil rights subgroup agreed that the party federal system of combatting racial discrimination.

Look for Their Views

Some Republicans favor strict federal anti-poll, anti-lynch and anti-discrimination measures but neither Sen. Robert A. Taft nor Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has gone this far. As front-running prospective presidential candidates it was felt their views should prevail.

As a compromise and a bid for Negro and other racial votes, some committeemen suggested a voluntary federal commission which could ban discrimination on government jobs and government contracts.

They also proposed that the voluntary commission be authorized to examine into racial conditions at state and local levels and make recommendations.

These latter proposals irked other subcommitteemen who insisted that if Republicans are to gain southern votes the party platform should favor "hands off" at state and local levels.

Only Promises

Numerous closed-door sessions of the civil rights subcommittee so far have produced only promises of two sharply differing drafts.

Millikin asked all his subgroups to hand in their separate planks for polishing and analysis by staff technicians this forenoon.

Most of the hotel room conferences still centered about the key foreign policy plank, with widespread speculation as to its contents.

Millikin has been maneuvering to get warring Taft-Eisenhower factions signed on the dotted line before he reveals it.

His task is a touchy one, one Republican confided, because he must blister past international moves of the Democrats enough to please one GOP faction and still back the United Nations and collective anti-Communist moves sufficiently to satisfy another Republican wing.

John Foster Dulles, former New York senator and State Department consultant, has been doing missionary work for Millikin at the convention.

Last night Dulles conferred privately with Rep. Christian Herter of Massachusetts, one of the many Eisenhower aides, about the foreign policy plank.

Dulles had roughed one out that ran about 11 pages. When each member of Millikin's subcommittee added his ideas the length doubled. Now Dulles is rewriting this to try to please all factions.

Oscar V. Ballin, Jr., 27, who gave his address as the Huntington Hotel, was arrested by state police late Thursday night on charges of leaving the scene of an accident. Ballin pleaded innocent when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Edward Brodsky of the town of Rosendale and was held at the Ulster county jail for a hearing July 9. Bail was set at $200. Troopers said an automobile driven by Ballin was in collision with one operated by Ray Carney of Newburgh, on Route 32, three miles north of Rosendale. No personal injuries were reported.

To Show Hooked Rugs

The exhibition of hooked rugs at Epworth Hall, 122 Clinton avenue, will be held Wednesday, July 9, from 2 to 4 and 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. A previous item announcing the exhibit for July 8 was in error.

Philmont Man Is Held for Assault on Hudson Bartender

Hudson, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—A Columbia county man is charged with first-degree assault in connection with a fight with a tavern keeper who later died.

However, a preliminary autopsy report said the death of Jacob Wasyliszgn last night was not the result of injuries suffered in the fight. Coroner Dewey A. Lawrence withheld a verdict pending further investigation.

Held on the assault charge was Joseph Gordon, 33, of nearby Philmont.

The coroner said the 56-year-old Wasyliszgn refused to serve Gordon in the tavern and the fight followed. Wasyliszgn was hit with a bottle, Lawrence reported.

Although the crowd at the first day's showing was not up to expectations, those who enjoyed the stellar attractions told so many of their friends that last night more than 1,000 were in the stand, and tonight's finale at 8:30 is expected to fill the stadium.

No UN Losses Are Reported by 5th Air Force on Holiday

Seoul, Korea, July 5 (AP)—United Nations pilots destroyed or damaged 21 Communist jets and leveled a big Red military school without losing a single plane in a Fourth of July raid near the Manchurian border, the U. S. Fifth Air Force reported today.

About 70 U. S. Thunderjet fighter-bombers hurled explosives and flaming gasoline on a large headquarters building and barracks structures at the school, 20 miles south of the Yalu river. Intelligence reports estimated 1,500 Communist officer candidates were to have been graduated there this month.

12 MIGs Destroyed

Eighty-five American Sabre jets ripped into formations of 115 Russian-built MIG-15s bent on thwarting the strike.

The fast Sabres bagged their second highest toll of MIGs for any single day of the war, the air force said—12 destroyed, two probably destroyed and seven damaged.

The air force said camera film had confirmed 10 kills, one probable and four damaged.

Sabre pilots last December 13 shot down 13 MIGs.

The Fourth of July battle ended a week in which no allied planes were lost over North Korea, the air force said. It was the first such week since last August.

Fires Rage

The only reported Communist losses of the week were the 21 MIGs destroyed or damaged in yesterday's encounter.

"Fires were raging all over as we withdrew, with black smoke spiralling up from the ruins of flattened buildings," said Lt. William H. Scott Jr. of St. Petersburg, Fla., last man over the target.

Other U. S. Air Force and Marine, Royal Australian, South Korean and South African planes joined in attacks on the Reds' North Korean supply system yesterday. The air force said night bombers knocked out 41 supply vehicles Friday.

Rough Ground Action

Allied pilots claimed they killed 45 Communists in three air strikes against enemy troop positions near Panmunjom.

The U. S. Eighth Army said the roughest ground action was in the same area. Defenders of an allied outpost forced Communist attackers to withdraw after an hour's exchange of grenade and small arms fire early today.

Heaviest artillery exchange was on the "Old Baldy" and "T-Bone" hill sector near Chorwon on the western front.

Long Peace Talk

Munsan, Korea, July 5 (AP)—Korean armistice negotiators held their longest session in weeks today on the thorny prisoner repatriation issue, then set another secret meeting for tomorrow.

Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, UN command spokesman, emerged from the 70-minute session at Panmunjom and indicated the talks were proceeding in business-like fashion.

"There was no apparent raising of voices inside the tent," he said.

The Communists requested the secret meetings. This means correspondents are not given details of what takes place in the conference tent. Newsmen have never been permitted to attend the sessions.

Compulsory Labor

Berlin, July 5 (AP)—The West Berlin newspaper Telegraf reported today the east zone Communist government has put into effect sweeping decrees making virtually every fit east German liable for compulsory labor.

$70,000 Phone Project to Give North Kingston 150 Party Lines

In north Kingston, 150 or more party-line customers will get the individual-line service they have requested, by the end of the year, C. E. Burnett, New York Telephone Company manager here, said today.

"All this will be made possible by the installation of a mile of underground cable and eight miles of overhead cable along Foxhall avenue and Route 9W," the manager said.

Burnett added that this is a $70,000 project, undertaken to help meet the development of the north Kingston section where the population has doubled in three years.

"We are pushing similar construction projects throughout the state to meet the need, despite high costs," he said, adding that before inflation the north Kingston job would have amounted to only a little over $40,000.

Wicks One of First GOPs in Chicago

Many From State Sectors Leave on Special Train Today for Parley

Arthur H. Wicks, state Senate majority leader and delegate to the Republican National Convention, left for Chicago by airplane on Thursday, arriving ahead of the bulk of the state's 96-member delegation.

The district's other delegate is former State Senator Frederic H. Bontecou of Millbrook in Dutchess county. Alternates are Henry M. James of Hudson and Neal Brandow of West Coxsackie.

Three to Fly Out

Three local attorneys are planning to fly to Chicago tomorrow to attend convention sessions as observers. They are N. LeVan Haver, Republican city chairman; John Egan and John L. Larkin.

Most of the state's delegates will leave today aboard the 13-car Empire State Victory Special on the New York Central Railroad. The train is scheduled to leave New York at 2:45 p. m. with the bulk of the delegation, picking up other delegates at Albany, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo.

300th Anniversary Art Show Will Open Here July 16

Invitations were received in the mails this week by a large group of Ulster county citizens to the opening ceremonies of Kingston's 300th Anniversary Art Show at the George Washington School, Wednesday, July 16, at 8 p. m.

In addition to a preview of the show, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Maxim Karolik and Robert C. Vose, Jr., noted art collectors of Boston, will participate.

The Art Show Committee states that attendance at this function is by no means limited to persons who have received a notification by mail. The public is invited.

The art show is the culmination of a dream toward which Mrs. Emily C. Chadbourne has striven for many years. Mrs. Chadbourne, a benefactress of the city of Kingston in many instances over the past several years, has always hoped that priceless and significant works of art might be brought to local citizens so they might have the same advantages heretofore enjoyed only by residents of New York, Boston, Paris and Vienna.

Exhibit Worth $150,000

It is only because of Mrs. Chadbourne's friendship with some of the foremost art collectors of the country that this exhibit, valued in excess of $150,000, has been arranged for Kingston. Many of the works have never before, and probably never again will be, publicly exhibited.

Mrs. Chardbourne, herself a recognized authority on American art, has also prevailed upon Karolik and Vose to speak on the significance and the background of the exhibit on the opening night.

Many of the paintings are from the private collection of Karolik, who has dedicated a lifetime to collecting works which clearly indicate the emergence and trends of a native American art form from the very beginnings of this country. The Boston Museum of Fine Arts broke all precedent several years ago by building a new wing to the museum especially to house intact a collection of American art covering the period 1720 to 1820, donated to that institution by Mrs and Mrs. Karolik.

Hudson Valley Art

Vose, an art authority and director of the Vose Galliers in Boston, has spent the greater part of this year in assembling a group of paintings of familiar scenes in the Hudson valley, or by painters who resided in the valley. While everyone is familiar with the fact that the "Hudson River School" influenced artistic techniques and thought internationally for almost

Local Vet Office Has GI Bill Data

Congress Is Due to Pass Law This Week for New Benefits

Information about the new GI Bill for Korean veterans now pending in Congress may be obtained from the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency, 32 Main street, Kingston, or at branch offices in Ellenville, Highland, Kerhonkson or Saugerties.

It was pointed out yesterday by Leo V. Lanning, director of the New York State Division of Veterans Affairs, that Korean veterans are being discharged from the armed forces at the rate of 35,000 a month, of which ten per cent are from New York state. He said that both houses of Congress are expected to reach agreement on the bill during the ensuing week.

Extends Aid

The measure will extend to Korean veterans educational and loan guarantee benefits, mustering out pay, employment assistance and other benefits similar to those provided for World War 2 veterans, Lanning said.

Lanning, who is a member of the New York State Civil Defense Commission, also pointed out the urgent need for more than 70,000 additional volunteers to fill vacancies in the state Ground Observation Corps. Beginning Monday, July 14, the state's 605 posts and four filter centers will be organized on a 24-hour basis.

Persons interested in volunteering their services may obtain further information at local offices of the Veteran's Service Agencies or Civil Defense, Lanning pointed out.

Three Million Project Planned at Stewart AFB

A $3,520,000 project for the Stewart Air Force Base at Newburgh is included in the revised military construction bill totaling $52,904,000 on which the Senate and House are expected to act today in Washington, the Associated Press reported this morning.

The compromise measure, providing for a total expenditure of $2,396,302,800 in the United States and overseas, was approved last night by a Senate-House conference committee appointed to work out differences between bills approved by the two Houses.

The Senate cut out two proposed army projects in New York. One called for expenditure of $77,000 at Fort Tilden, Rockaway Park, the other $352,000 for Fort Wadsworth on Staten Island.

Says He's Through

Pusan, Korea, July 5 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said today a presidential election will be held as soon as possible and added he does 'not wish to run and I want the people to understand this." Government officials however, expressed belief that the 77-year-old president would accept re-election.

GOP Troubled With Rights Too

Port Ewen Corps Wins First Prize

The Port Ewen Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps added another trophy to its case of prizes July 4 when it marched in the parade at Warwick for the firemen's celebration.

It was a first prize the corps won, and along with the trophy went the plaudits of spectators, who called the marching group one of the best musical units they had ever seen.

Only Promises Are Received From Committee Room

Chicago, July 5 (AP)—Republican platform architects admitted unhappily today they are having trouble with their plan on civil rights.

In recent years this convention headache has afflicted mostly the Democrats but now it's bothering the GOP as well.

Sen. Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado, chairman of the platform committee, told this reporter he now has rough drafts from 10 or 11 subcommittees, "all except civil rights."

"If we don't get one from the subcommittee then the full committee will have to write it," the Coloradan added.

Millikin still tried to keep a tight cover on details of the 1952 platform but other committee sources provided this version:

All members on the civil rights subgroup agreed that the party federal system of combatting racial discrimination.

Look for Their Views

Some Republicans favor strict federal anti-poll, anti-lynch and anti-discrimination measures but neither Sen. Robert A. Taft nor Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has gone this far. As front-running prospective presidential candidates it was felt their views should prevail.

As a compromise and a bid for Negro and other racial votes, some committeemen suggested a voluntary federal commission which could ban discrimination on government jobs and government contracts.

They also proposed that the voluntary commission be authorized to examine into racial conditions at state and local levels and make recommendations.

These latter proposals irked other subcommitteemen who insisted that if Republicans are to gain southern votes the party platform should favor "hands off" at state and local levels.

Only Promises

Numerous closed-door sessions of the civil rights subcommittee so far have produced only promises of two sharply differing drafts.

Millikin asked all his subgroups to hand in their separate planks for polishing and analysis by staff technicians this forenoon.

Most of the hotel room conferences still centered about the key foreign policy plank, with widespread speculation as to its contents.

Millikin has been maneuvering to get warring Taft-Eisenhower factions signed on the dotted line before he reveals it.

His task is a touchy one, one Republican confided, because he must blister past international moves of the Democrats enough to please one GOP faction and still back the United Nations and collective anti-Communist moves sufficiently to satisfy another Republican wing.

John Foster Dulles, former New York senator and State Department consultant, has been doing missionary work for Millikin at the convention.

Last night Dulles conferred privately with Rep. Christian Herter of Massachusetts, one of the many Eisenhower aides, about the foreign policy plank.

Dulles had roughed one out that ran about 11 pages. When each member of Millikin's subcommittee added his ideas the length doubled. Now Dulles is rewriting this to try to please all factions.

Says Doughboys To Remain Vital Factor in Combat

Korean War Veteran Tells Kiwanis Infantry Marks Progress Despite New Methods

In spite of all the new methods of warfare, the infantry soldiers' forward foxholes "continue to mark our progress toward victory," Major O. E. Smith, combat infantry officer, said in an address before the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday.

Major Smith returned to this country six months ago after a year in Korea. He is at present assistant chief of staff, G-1, to Major General Frederick Irving, commandant of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. During World War 2, he served two years in Italy.

In a tribute to the infantry, Major Smith predicted that the ground troops will always remain the decisive factor in war.

"The infantry soldier carries the fight to the enemy on the ground. It is his duty to seize the ground and hold it," he said.

Is Trained Technician

Reviewing the history of the infantry from early Greek and Roman times to the present, Major Smith said that the foot soldier of today must have "brains as well as guts." Although he is "still a marching doughboy, today he must also be a trained technician," he said, pointing out that the infantryman now must master a large number of special weapons, and that some of them are specialists in flying grasshopper planes and in "jockeying tanks."

Major Smith said our soldiers were unprepared when they entered Korea, many of them being under the impression that as soon as the North Koreans saw the U. S. Army they would give up.

The speaker was introduced by Christopher Morris, who arranged the program for Thursday's Kiwanis meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Following his talk, Major Smith remained to answer questions from the floor.

Sets Chute Record

Grand Prairie, Tex., July 5 (AP)—A stubborn, pug-faced stuntman bucked buffeting winds for almost 24 hours to set a new marathon parachute jumping record. Virginia Couple Gets TV Trip To Kingston on Honeymoon

A bride and groom from Richmond, Va., will spend their honeymoon in Kingston during the week of the 300th Anniversary pageant, beginning Wednesday, July 23.

Immediately after their marriage on a Columbia Broadcasting Company TV show Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson Turnley will be brought to this city in a 1952 Pontiac automobile that will be placed at their disposal during their five-day stay here.

Through John F. Kinerk, executive secretary of the New York Hotel Association, the American Hotel Corporation, of which the Governor Clinton is a member, was able to arrange for the local honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Turnley are expected to attend the opening of the Kingston Historical Pageant on Wednesday, July 23, and will be officially welcomed and presented with a key to the city by Mayor Oscar Newkirk.

A comprehensive program is being arranged for the honeymoon couple.

The bride and groom show is televised five days a week by CBS-TV on 34 coast-to-coast stations at 11:15 a. m. Sponsor is General Mills.

A photographer from Pennington's Studio will take pictures of the couple arriving at the Governor Clinton Hotel and during the week. At the end of the honeymoon, the couple will be given a honeymoon album by Pennington's Studio.

Sprague Predicts Ike Will Win Dispute on Barring Delegates From Voting

Hard on Taft

Eisenhower Supporters Say Their Fight Is Only Beginning

Chicago, July 5 (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft's Texas-borne surge toward the Republican presidential nomination faced a blistering challenge today from supporters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The two major contenders, arriving here during the day, were ready to take over personal direction of a round-by-round battle in next week's convention for the 604 votes needed to give one of them the party's nomination.

Taft's chief lieutenants told a reporter they expect him to decide whether he will shoot the political works on an attempt to win a first ballot nomination.

J. Russel Sprague, New York national committeeman and an Eisenhower backer, predicted in an interview the general will win by a 50-vote margin a convention rules test on the question of barring disputed delegates from voting on the seating of contested groups.

For Taft, any such result would represent the first major setback in a week of pre-convention activities which has seen him—backed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and supported indirectly by former President Herbert Hoover—sweep to within 74 votes of the needed nomination total in The Associated Press tabulation.

This scoreboard includes contested delegates awarded to Taft by the Republican National Committee. Since the committee's decisions are being appealed, only the events of next week can determine just how high Taft's total will be.

The Count

As of now, the count showed: Taft 530, Eisenhower 427, other candidates 131, still uncommitted 118. To win, a candidate must have 604 votes.

The Ohioan increased his lead yesterday when the Republican National Committee voted 60 to 41 to accept the senator's personally-devised compromise of the explosive dispute over 38 Texas delegates.

Despite repeated cries by Eisenhower's supporters that a "steal" had been engineered in the Lone Star state, the committee voted to give Taft 22 of the delegates and assign 16 of them to Eisenhower.

This was exactly what Taft had proposed earlier in the day and what Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, national campaign manager for Eisenhower, had rejected as a "compromise with fraud."

Just Begun to Fight

Lodge, Sprague and other Eisenhower leaders made it clear quickly that they had only begun to fight. They said they will carry their high voltage protests to the credentials committee and to the convention floor itself.

This indiciated it might be several days before the delegates would get around to voting on a nominee, with television cameras looking at the cast kept off the screens in yesterday's committee meeting.

The first big test in the convention battling will come on Lodge's proposal to bar any contested delegate from voting on any contest over a convention seat.

Sprague said the Eisenhower backers concede in advance they can't prevent the delegates seated temporarily by the national committee from voting on this Lodge proposal.

All told the national committee

Philmont Man Is Held for Assault on Hudson Bartender

Hudson, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—A Columbia county man is charged with first-degree assault in connection with a fight with a tavern keeper who later died.

However, a preliminary autopsy report said the death of Jacob Wasyliszgn last night was not the result of injuries suffered in the fight. Coroner Dewey A. Lawrence withheld a verdict pending further investigation.

Held on the assault charge was Joseph Gordon, 33, of nearby Philmont.

The coroner said the 56-year-old Wasyliszgn refused to serve Gordon in the tavern and the fight followed. Wasyliszgn was hit with a bottle, Lawrence reported.

Oscar V. Ballin, Jr., 27, who gave his address as the Huntington Hotel, was arrested by state police late Thursday night on charges of leaving the scene of an accident. Ballin pleaded innocent when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Edward Brodsky of the town of Rosendale and was held at the Ulster county jail for a hearing July 9. Bail was set at $200. Troopers said an automobile driven by Ballin was in collision with one operated by Ray Carney of Newburgh, on Route 32, three miles north of Rosendale. No personal injuries were reported.

'NEW LOOK' COMES TO CARACAS

Caracas, 400-year-old capital city of oil-rich Venezuela, is undergoing a $300,000,000 transformation. Three times the cost of New York's Rockefeller Center, "Avenida Bolivar" will serve as a model for eventual renovation of the entire narrow-laned "City of Red Roofs." Named in honor of Simon Bolivar, South America's "George Washington," the Avenida is already more than one-fourth completed. It has as its heart a mile-long eight-lane superhighway. More than 400 buildings were torn down to give space for the project, which will contain 24 principal buildings, including two 28-story skyscrapers. Central section of the Avenida will have four traffic levels, including an underground parking area for 1600 cars and a terminal for 600 buses. Two underground thoroughfares will serve the central location.

Architect's model of Avenida Bolivar and new buildings which are now under construction. This project will keynote a "new look" for Venezuela's capital city.

Mile-long Avenida Bolivar is heart of $300,000,000 project which is transforming the face of 400-year-old Caracas. North-south automotive under-pass begins here at Silencio, Caracas' "Times Square."

Your Life and Mine

The Wish for More Noses

June—which is still with us as I write these lines but will be nothing but history when they break out into print—is the month of roses. I paused for a brief moment as I returned from a sad errand recently to admire a hedge of beauties along a sidewalk near our home. Almost always whenever I see roses and enjoy their fragrance I think of those lines from the pen of Laura Elizabeth Richards:

"Baby said
When she smelt the rose,
'Oh! what a pity
I've only one nose!'"

That longing for more noses is, very often, more than an infantile wish. But just adding more noses wouldn't insure a greater quantity of the fragrances of life; for many times we might wish for a multiplication of the olifactory organ when we really aren't making good use of the one we do have. So many of life's delights never reach us, not because they aren't there or because our equipment for registering them isn't adequate; but simply because we are too busy with other things to give them half a chance to bless us. They wait patiently beyond doors which we carelessly keep closed.

It is true, too, that more noses might be a discouraging liability because they might not be used for the right purposes. It seems to me I vaguely recall a rumor that once or twice in the record of human history the single projecting organ of the face has been used for the purpose of sticking it into other people's business. I think that must have been back in ancient Carthage! (It seems strange, but that is about all I can remember of my study of ancient history.) But if that should ever happen in the here and now it would mean that multiplied noses would woefully subtract from this old world's all-too-limited supply of real friendliness.

All of us, I am sure, have heard of folks who could have gotten on very well with a little less nose. If what they already have could, by some miracle of grace, be lessened a little—what an asset that would be to community spirit!

This much seems certain: no amount of wishing will ever provide us with any more noses. But the wish, if it is charmingly healthy—as it is in the little poem—can inspire us with the wisdom to make better use of the only one we shall ever have. The awareness that there is more to life than we are now getting out of it is a fertile preliminary to a more fragrant and meaningful existence.

Bat 'Heaven'

Carlsbad Cavern is the home of from three to five million bats, which fly out at sundown, except during the winter season. Blind fish and other creatures, living in total darkness, also have been found in the caves.

Poll Taxers

Seven states still require payment of a poll tax: Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia.

Shunned Sea

Travelers during the Middle Ages reported that no birds flew over the Dead Sea because the air was poisonous in that region. Modern science knows that birds avoid the sea because it contains no fish, and that little plant life can grow because of the saltiness of the water.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Let the Other Guy Do the Dirty Work

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The annual intercollegiate bridge tournament has become a fixture on the national scene, and I for one am heartily in favor of it. A couple of thousand college men and women enter this competition each year, thus practicing one of the few intercollegiate sports that they will continue to play when they have finished their studies.

The hand shown today was played by all the students in the first round of this year's tournament. It helped separate the sheep from the goats by singling out the players who were smart enough to let the other fellow do the dirty work.

The play to the first three tricks was almost invariably the same. Dummy took the ace of clubs, and then South took the ace and king of trumps.

South was usually disappointed to find that he had to lose a trump trick, for now he could afford to lose only one spade trick. The poor players promptly tackled the spades, hoping to find the jack of spades in the East hand.

The usual method was to lead a spade to dummy's king and then finesse the ten of spades on the way back. This plan failed, for West took two spade tricks and a club, after which East was sure to set the contract with his trump trick.

The correct plan was followed by a large number of college experts. South takes the three diamonds, ending in his own hand, and leads a club. West must take the jack of clubs and continue the suit, whereupon South ruffs the third round of clubs.

South now leads a trump, giving East his queen. At this point East must tackle the spades, since a diamond return would give declarer a highly useful ruff and sluff. When East leads a low spade, South plays low, and West's jack is trapped.

West can take his ace of spades, giving South the king and queen; or he can play the jack to force out dummy's king, after which South's queen-ten are equals.

'NEW LOOK' COMES TO CARACAS

Caracas, 400-year-old capital city of oil-rich Venezuela, is undergoing a $300,000,000 transformation. Three times the cost of New York's Rockefeller Center, "Avenida Bolivar" will serve as a model for eventual renovation of the entire narrow-laned "City of Red Roofs." Named in honor of Simon Bolivar, South America's "George Washington," the Avenida is already more than one-fourth completed. It has as its heart a mile-long eight-lane superhighway. More than 400 buildings were torn down to give space for the project, which will contain 24 principal buildings, including two 28-story skyscrapers. Central section of the Avenida will have four traffic levels, including an underground parking area for 1600 cars and a terminal for 600 buses. Two underground thoroughfares will serve the central location.

Architect's model of Avenida Bolivar and new buildings which are now under construction. This project will keynote a "new look" for Venezuela's capital city.

Mile-long Avenida Bolivar is heart of $300,000,000 project which is transforming the face of 400-year-old Caracas. North-south automotive under-pass begins here at Silencio, Caracas' "Times Square."

Your Life and Mine

by CLYDE HERBERT SNELL

The Wish for More Noses

June—which is still with us as I write these lines but will be nothing but history when they break out into print—is the month of roses. I paused for a brief moment as I returned from a sad errand recently to admire a hedge of beauties along a side-walk near our home. Almost always whenever I see roses and enjoy their fragrance I think of those lines from the pen of Laura Elizabeth Richards:

"Baby said
When she smelt the rose,
'Oh! what a pity
I've only one nose!'"

That longing for more noses is, very often, more than an infantile wish. But just adding more noses wouldn't insure a greater quantity of the fragrances of life; for many times we might wish for a multiplication of the olifactory organ when we really aren't making good use of the one we do have. So many of life's delights never reach us, not because they aren't there or because our equipment for registering them isn't adequate; but simply because we are too busy with other things to give them half a chance to bless us. They wait patiently beyond doors which we carelessly keep closed.

It is true, too, that more noses might be a discouraging liability because they might not be used for the right purposes. It seems to me I vaguely recall a rumor that once or twice in the record of human history the single projecting organ of the face has been used for the purpose of sticking it into other people's business. I think that must have been back in ancient Carthage! (It seems strange, but that is about all I can remember of my study of ancient history.) But if that should ever happen in the here and now it would mean that multiplied noses would woefully subtract from this old world's all-too-limited supply of real friendliness.

All of us, I am sure, have heard of folks who could have gotten on very well with a little less nose. If what they already have could, by some miracle of grace, be lessened a little—what an asset that would be to community spirit!

This much seems certain: no amount of wishing will ever provide us with any more noses. But the wish, if it is charmingly healthy—as it is in the little poem—can inspire us with the wisdom to make better use of the only one we shall ever have. The awareness that there is more to life than we are now getting out of it is a fertile preliminary to a more fragrant and meaningful existence.

Bat 'Heaven'

Carlsbad Cavern is the home of from three to five million bats, which fly out at sundown, except during the winter season. Blind fish and other creatures, living in total darkness, also have been found in the caves.

Poll Taxers

Seven states still require payment of a poll tax: Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia.

Shunned Sea

Travelers during the Middle Ages reported that no birds flew over the Dead Sea because the air was poisonous in that region. Modern science knows that birds avoid the sea because it contains no fish, and that little plant life can grow because of the saltiness of the water.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Let the Other Guy Do the Dirty Work

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The annual intercollegiate bridge tournament has become a fixture on the national scene, and I for one am heartily in favor of it. A couple of thousand college men and women enter this competition each year, thus practicing one of the few intercollegiate sports that they will continue to play when they have finished their studies.

The hand shown today was played by all the students in the first round of this year's tournament. It helped separate the sheep from the goats by singling out the players who were smart enough to let the other fellow do the dirty work.

The play to the first three tricks was almost invariably the same. Dummy took the ace of clubs, and then South took the ace and king of trumps.

South was usually disappointed to find that he had to lose a trump trick, for now he could afford to lose only one spade trick. The poor players promptly tackled the spades, hoping to find the jack of spades in the East hand.

The usual method was to lead a spade to dummy's king and then finesse the ten of spades on the way back. This plan failed, for West took two spade tricks and a club, after which East was sure to set the contract with his trump trick.

The correct plan was followed by a large number of college experts. South takes the three diamonds, ending in his own hand, and leads a club. West must take the jack of clubs and continue the suit, whereupon South ruffs the third round of clubs.

South now leads a trump, giving East his queen. At this point East must tackle the spades, since a diamond return would give declarer a highly useful ruff and sluff. When East leads a low spade, South plays low, and West's jack is trapped.

West can take his ace of spades, giving South the king and queen; or he can play the jack to force out dummy's king, after which South's queen-ten are equals.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I received an interesting little book called "Mother Goose, History of Ulster County and Anniversary Songs" 1658-1908. It was sent me by Mrs. G. L. Elias (formerly Marty Spade, who worked in the county clerk's office). It is written in comic verse style. For instance one item reads: "There was a man of Steep Rocks, who carried about, with him, clocks. You couldn't expect, this fact to detect, unless you examined his socks." There are some 77 verses each taking in another village or town of Ulster county with a silly little verse. Another verse reads: 'There once was a man of West Park, who frequently used to remark, concerning a flea, I never could see, why Noah took two in the Ark." Another reads: "There once was a man of Katrine, who sat on a can of benzine, he happened to scratch, a lucifer match, and since then, he hasn't been seen."

It doesn't say who wrote the booklet but perhaps some of the officials of the 250th anniversary back in 1908 remember it and know the story about it. There is a song in the back of the book called "Marching Through Kingston," written to the music of "Marching Through Georgia." The first verse reads "Listen to the music, as the bands begin to play! Hear the people cheering, as the mayor leads the way! Kingston's anniversary we celebrate today. While we are marching through Kingston, Hurrah! Hurrah! for Sixteen Fifty Eight! Hurrah! for Kingston's natal date! We venerate its founders, and its age we celebrate, While we are marching through Kingston."

Another set of verses is to "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again." This is called "250 years ago." The first verse reads "The City of Kingston's natal date, we cheer, today. The Dutchmen, in Sixteen-fifty-eight, came here, to stay. Two hundred and fifty years ago, there wasn't much of a crowd, you know, But, now just watch us swarming along Broadway!"

This little booklet, four and a half by six inches with a paper cover and showing an Indian on the front cover sold for 10 cents. The author remains nameless, unless his by-line "Alliteraricus" means something to someone today. The publishing house is given as Wm. Bratter & Co. with no city or state address. Some of the verses are silly. Perhaps it was written by a well known individual just for the fun of it. No doubt others have saved it too. There are no advs. or other clues, as to who printed it or why, except the 250 anniversary celebration. He no doubt went through a lot of trouble to cover each little town in the verses. There are spots of sarcasm in some of the poems, so perhaps old timers know what it meant then.

Perhaps the Kingston City Library has this little booklet, so folks from Gardiner, Ulster Park, Pine Hill, Shady, Mt. Marion and other places can read the poems written about their locality. It was fun reading each poem, for they are light-hearted and gay and picture an age which seemed so carefree and happy, not anything like today.

Well Designed for Modern Living

Rooms	Six
Bedrooms	Three
Closets	Seven
Cubage:
House	17,000 ft.
Garage	3,700 ft.
Dimensions	60' x 33'

The house proper, excluding the laundry and attached garage, measures 39'x36' cubage; of the house is 17,000 feet. Overall dimensions are 60'x33'. The garage has a cubage of 3,700 feet. To build "The Blackdale," complete with the laundry and garage, at least an 800-foot lot would be required. Although construction of the garage can be left until some later date if you prefer, be sure to provide sufficient land for this addition.

An attractive front door, such as the one with the three glass panels used in the illustration, also can dress up and beautify the exterior of any simply designed home such as "The Blackdale." There is a small entry hall in this house so that drafts caused by opening the front door don't reach the living room. The large closet, in the right wall of the entry hall, can serve a multitude of useful storage purposes.

Furniture Placement

Large and well lighted, the 20' x 11'4" living room serves as both dining room and living room. There is a large picture window, flanked by casement windows in the front wall; two more windows flank the large fireplace centered in the left wall of the room. Place the dining room set near the door to the kitchen which is located in the back wall. The unbroken expanses along the back and right walls of the room facilitate the attractive and convenient arrangement of large furniture pieces.

With counters, cupboards and cabinets lining the back and right walls, the kitchen is arranged for the comfort and convenience of the busy house wife. The stove is placed at the right end of the line of counters in this 12'6" x 11'4" kitchen; the sink is located under the double windows in the back wall.

Situated as it is against the front kitchen wall, the refrigerator is only a few steps away from the stove. The breakfast nook, placed in the left front corner of the room, receives extra light and ventilation through the window looking out on the front porch. You'll appreciate the good sized broom closet in the left back corner of the kitchen, near the door to the laundry.

Protects Garage Entry

Two windows and two doors make the laundry a pleasant and well ventilated room. Measuring 9'x7', this room is large enough to accommodate complete equipment for a modern home laundry. Doors from the laundry lead to the front porch, which provides protected entrance to the garage, and to the back porch or sun deck from which you can easily reach the back yard.

Windows on opposite walls provide sufficient light and good ventilation for the 20'x11' garage. There is ample room in the garage for overhead storage space; there is room also for a small work bench for the home handyman, if you care to have one installed. Place such a bench near one of the windows, however.

The bedrooms and bath occupy the right half of "The Blackdale." These rooms are all connected by a central hallway leading from a door in the right living room wall. A large linen closet opens on this hallway beside the doorway from the living room. In this location the linen closet is conveniently near to both the bedrooms and the bathroom.

Receiving ample light and ventilation through one window in its front wall, the all modern bath contains both a tub and a shower. The den or bedroom receives good light and ventilation through two windows in its back wall. This 11'x11'4" room contains two closets—a feature that will be especially appreciated if this room is used as a bedroom for two members of the family.

Measuring 12'x11', the back bedroom receives good lighting and cross ventilation from the window in the right wall of the room and the other window in the back wall of the room.

There also is a large closet in the front bedroom which is 11 foot square in measurements. This room, too, enjoys the benefits of cross ventilation.

Structural Glass Walls in Lighter Colors Preferred

Toledo, Ohio — Housewives choosing structural glass for bathroom or kitchen walls now prefer it in lighter colors, according to a survey just completed by a leading glass company here. Light gray, tan, sky blue and jade green are the current favorites.

The sudden popularity of lighter shades is attributed in large measure to their ability to harmonize with other furnishings. They blend with just about everything.

With the trend toward lighter colors has come the desire for only one color of structural glass to a room. Not only is this more economical from the standpoint of installation costs, but owners find the decorating job is simpler when there is only one wall color to contend with.

Structural glass now is available in 12 correlated colors, including black and white.

Fill Masonry Chinks

Before applying a new coating of paint to a masonry surface in which there are cracks, the cracks should be filled with a special compound made up of one part Portland cement to three parts of sand mixed with water. This compound can be used on concrete, stucco, brick or stone.

Chewing Gum Helps

If a speck of matter falls on a painted surface which is still wet, it can be removed by touching it lightly with a stick of wood tipped with a ball of fairly dry chewing gum. The speck will stick to the gum and the paint will flow together again.

Big Demand for Light Finishes in Furniture

With so many fine ranch-type homes appearing on the American scene, a great demand has developed for various light finishes in furniture which will be suitable for their furnishing.

Limed oak is currently very popular because the color is so well adapted to modern styles of furniture. Silver oak is another popular color, especially for occasional pieces. This effect is obtained by using a basic mahogany finish on the oak and then overtoning it with a light color.

The rich natural grain of mahogany lends itself admirably to all kinds of blond finishes. Walnut, in various shades, is also quite popular.

Early American Colors

In the days when Early American furniture was considered "contemporary," the painted wall colors which were most popular included soft blue-gray, turquoise and pumpkin yellow. There were also glints of vermillion for accent.

Lays the Dust

Here is a way to keep the dirt floor of a garage free of dust. Sprinkle calcium chloride over the floor surface. Absorbing moisture from the air, the chemical will keep the dirt damp.

Drapes With Personality

You can make individualized drapes by painting or stenciling your own designs on plain sailcloth or unbleached muslin.

Broom Has Meaning

A broom lashed to the mainmast of a ship is a sign that the owner of the vessel wishes to sell the boat.

Killed on Motorcycle

Greenwich, Conn., July 5 (AP)—A motorcyclist was killed and a rider injured yesterday when the two wheeler on which they were riding swerved off the Boston Post Road at Riverside and crashed into a concrete retaining wall. Killed was Daniel R. McIntyre, Jr., 27, of Darien and New Rochelle, N. Y. Taken to Greenwich Hospital was Kenneth Drummond, 26, of Portchester, N. Y., with multiple contusions and lacerations. Greenwich Police Sgt. Thomas Newton blamed the accident on excessively high speed.

Trusties Escape

Riverhead, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—Two trusties who fled the county jail grounds late yesterday afternoon were captured last night. Kenneth Farris, 25, of Huntington, N. Y., was seized as he left a Smithtown, N. Y., bar and grill with his wife. Lyman Halley, 26, of Lindenhurst, N. Y., was captured at Islip, N. Y. Farris and Halley had been working on the courthouse grounds when they fled. Farris, authorities said, had but two weeks more to serve on an auto theft sentence. Halley was reported to be serving time on a family abandonment charge.

Windows on opposite walls provide sufficient light and good ventilation for the 20'x11' garage. There is ample room in the garage for overhead storage space; there is room also for a small work bench for the home handyman, if you care to have one installed. Place such a bench near one of the windows, however.

The bedrooms and bath occupy the right half of "The Blackdale." These rooms are all connected by a central hallway leading from a door in the right living room wall. A large linen closet opens on this hallway beside the doorway from the living room. In this location the linen closet is conveniently near to both the bedrooms and the bathroom.

Receiving ample light and ventilation through one window in its front wall, the all modern bath contains both a tub and a shower. The den or bedroom receives good light and ventilation through two windows in its back wall. This 11'x11'4" room contains two closets—a feature that will be especially appreciated if this room is used as a bedroom for two members of the family.

Measuring 12'x11', the back bedroom receives good lighting and cross ventilation from the window in the right wall of the room and the other window in the back wall of the room.

There also is a large closet in the front bedroom which is 11 foot square in measurements. This room, too, enjoys the benefits of cross ventilation.

Structural Glass Walls in Lighter Colors Preferred

Toledo, Ohio — Housewives choosing structural glass for bathroom or kitchen walls now prefer it in lighter colors, according to a survey just completed by a leading glass company here. Light gray, tan, sky blue and jade green are the current favorites.

The sudden popularity of lighter shades is attributed in large measure to their ability to harmonize with other furnishings. They blend with just about everything.

With the trend toward lighter colors has come the desire for only one color of structural glass to a room. Not only is this more economical from the standpoint of installation costs, but owners find the decorating job is simpler when there is only one wall color to contend with.

Structural glass now is available in 12 correlated colors, including black and white.

Fill Masonry Chinks

Before applying a new coating of paint to a masonry surface in which there are cracks, the cracks should be filled with a special compound made up of one part Portland cement to three parts of sand mixed with water. This compound can be used on concrete, stucco, brick or stone.

Chewing Gum Helps

If a speck of matter falls on a painted surface which is still wet, it can be removed by touching it lightly with a stick of wood tipped with a ball of fairly dry chewing gum. The speck will stick to the gum and the paint will flow together again.

Big Demand for Light Finishes in Furniture

With so many fine ranch-type homes appearing on the American scene, a great demand has developed for various light finishes in furniture which will be suitable for their furnishing.

Limed oak is currently very popular because the color is so well adapted to modern styles of furniture. Silver oak is another popular color, especially for occasional pieces. This effect is obtained by using a basic mahogany finish on the oak and then overtoning it with a light color.

The rich natural grain of mahogany lends itself admirably to all kinds of blond finishes. Walnut, in various shades, is also quite popular.

Early American Colors

In the days when Early American furniture was considered "contemporary," the painted wall colors which were most popular included soft blue-gray, turquoise and pumpkin yellow. There were also glints of vermillion for accent.

Lays the Dust

Here is a way to keep the dirt floor of a garage free of dust. Sprinkle calcium chloride over the floor surface. Absorbing moisture from the air, the chemical will keep the dirt damp.

Drapes With Personality

You can make individualized drapes by painting or stenciling your own designs on plain sailcloth or unbleached muslin.

Broom Has Meaning

A broom lashed to the mainmast of a ship is a sign that the owner of the vessel wishes to sell the boat.

Killed on Motorcycle

Greenwich, Conn., July 5 (AP)—A motorcyclist was killed and a rider injured yesterday when the two wheeler on which they were riding swerved off the Boston Post Road at Riverside and crashed into a concrete retaining wall. Killed was Daniel R. McIntyre, Jr., 27, of Darien and New Rochelle, N. Y. Taken to Greenwich Hospital was Kenneth Drummond, 26, of Portchester, N. Y., with multiple contusions and lacerations. Greenwich Police Sgt. Thomas Newton blamed the accident on excessively high speed.

Trusties Escape

Riverhead, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—Two trusties who fled the county jail grounds late yesterday afternoon were captured last night. Kenneth Farris, 25, of Huntington, N. Y., was seized as he left a Smithtown, N. Y., bar and grill with his wife. Lyman Halley, 26, of Lindenhurst, N. Y., was captured at Islip, N. Y. Farris and Halley had been working on the courthouse grounds when they fled. Farris, authorities said, had but two weeks more to serve on an auto theft sentence. Halley was reported to be serving time on a family abandonment charge.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATE DISPUTES

Six days before the Republican Convention opens, the party's national committee begins hearings in Chicago on 72 disputed southern delegates. The proceedings rival the deliberations of the Supreme Court in public attention.

It seems proper to hope that the national committee will weigh the disputes with the fair-minded detachment of a high court. Yet, on the basis of the committee's actions in recent weeks, we can have no guarantee of it.

The committee did accept for settlement the controversy involving all 38 of Texas' GOP delegates, when on a technicality it might have sent 32 of these contests back to the state level for disposition. This is all to the good. The Texas case is the heart of the matter.

But the contests involving district delegates in two other key southern states, Louisiana and Georgia, were sent back for handling by their respective state party committees.

It happens that the state group which normally wins recognition in Georgia at convention time favors General Eisenhower, while the state committee in Louisiana is controlled by sympathizers of Senator Taft. If the decisions in those states follow the lines of control, we may have each side winning a contest victory.

The Louisiana committee already has decided seven district contests in favor of Taft delegates and against rival Eisenhower people. Two more district seats probably will go the same way.

Yet even if the two main contenders should emerge almost even from these Georgia-Louisiana decisions, can we assume there is automatic justice in such a division of delegates?

In Louisiana, the essence of the Eisenhower delegates' claim to status as the proper legal delegates rests wholly in their contention that the state committee, Taft-dominated, ruthlessly shunted them aside and illegally named a rival slate.

Is it proper, therefore, that this same state committee shall now have sat in judgment on the very transgression of which it is accused? Could the committee have been expected to rule against itself?

The Eisenhower claims in Louisiana may or may not be true. All we in the nation can say is that we shall never know, since the case was heard and judged by one of the parties to the dispute. What sort of justice is that? It seems a sad demonstration for a party which wishes to go before the electorate in November with pride in its superior morality.

Public opinion challenges the Republican national committee to hear the Texas and other disputes at Chicago with impartiality and decide them on their merits. If the committee fails in this responsibility, it will then rest with the credentials committee, and finally the full convention itself, to do justice.

IN SOVIET GEORGIA

"How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child!" Stalin must feel something like this at hearing that corruption has invaded the collective farm system in his native state, Georgia. The seriousness of the crisis is shown by the attendance, at a party committee meeting, of Lavrenti P. Beria, deputy premier of the Soviet Union, head of the secret police, and a not unlikely candidate for the succession to Stalin. When he attends a local official meeting, it is a sure sign that no ordinary routine matters are involved.

Probably the Communists will settle this new disturbance in their usual way, concentration camps and murder. Force is the only governmental device they know and by excessive use of it they invite the very revolution which they seek to prevent.

We are only young once, 'tis true. And when we observe the pep and energy propelling youth today we are glad it was only once. It would seem impossible to go through that stage again!

PENSIONS

A pension is a saving out of wages, with or without employer participation. It is like buying an annuity, a life insurance policy, stocks, bonds, or any other investment or putting money in a savings bank. There is no reason for the mysticism which surrounds the word. It is a method of putting aside money for the rainy day.

When an employer participates in a pension fund, he, in effect, provides additional wages. This means that an increasing share of the earnings goes to salaries and wages, a cost which always must be added to the price of the commodity or service sold. In a deflationary period, this cost must be related to the purchaser's sales resistance; in an inflationary period, any additional cost decreases the purchasing power of our money.

In an older and more secure America, such matters were regarded as the privilege of the individual who decided for himself, at his own risk, what he wished to do with his own money. In our present Fabian Socialistic America, in which freedom of judgment and equality of opportunity are being bartered for fiscal security, the pension has grown increasingly popular.

The problem here is the same as in the very nature of wages. It depends on the ratio of the value of money when saved to the value of money when spent. For instance, the American dollar is now valued, in purchasing power, at 53 cents. Pensions granted in, say 1939 or 1940, are worth about half today. This may be satisfactory to the individual concerned, but it is not security. The only way to make such a pension secure is to have the payments at all times made in money of the value at the time the amount was paid in. This is an utterly impossible proposition because even on a small scale, such a procedure would produce a spiral inflation with a black market for trading in pension checks which would be the best currency available.

The pension depends upon prosperity. Unless it is paid out of taxes. From that standpoint, it is the same as profit-sharing. A 1929 dip in our economy could wipe out pension funds. A greater danger is that employer participation is possible only while the individual works for the particular firm, except when a life insurance company annuity plan continues the pension upon new employment. However, a period of unemployment means prolonged non-payments into pension funds. It is not possible to guarantee permanent full employment in any country. Unemployment insurance or relief is not the same as employment.

Therefore, to repeat, the value of the pension depends not only on the value of the currency of a country but also upon continued employment while the pension fund is being built up. This involves a prolonged progressive or state economy with no retrogressive periods. Such an economy has not yet existed in human history, even among new countries building an industry from scratch.

The real problem, then, in any pension scheme, is not only to provide for the security of the individual and his family, but for the security of the pension fund itself. There has been a vast experience with this in Germany where pension funds were general from Bismarck to Hitler. What the inflation after World War I did not wipe out, the fiscal policies of Hitler and the effects of World War II did. The German pension systems deteriorated with the collapse, first, of German currency, and then of German industry.

One of the principal social objections to current American pension systems is the actuarially-enforced retirement of strong, able-bodied, mentally alert and long-experienced persons at the age of 65. Because medical science and improved social conditions have not only prolonged life but also human usefulness, this country is being faced by an increasingly large population of frustrated men and women who could continue their work but are put out at the peak of their knowledge and usefulness.

This is a separate problem to which State Senator Thomas Desmond in New York has devoted himself—the problem of the oldsters. The pension might provide enough to buy a trailer and to traipse about the country following the seasons from Florida to Yellowstone, but it does not make for pride or human dignity or personal satisfaction.

This social problem grows more important as the older folks grow more numerous and healthier.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

FATIGUE

One of the commonest complaints for which a patient consults his physician is fatigue or tiredness. Formerly, the physician advised more rest and if he could find no cause for fatigue he sent the patient to his dentist, as infected teeth is one of the commonest causes of tiredness and sleepiness. If the dentist or other specialist could find no infection, the physician considered that the patient was working too hard or worrying too much and that a change would be helpful.

In Medical Clinics of North America, Drs. H. E. Harms and T. L. L. Soniat, Tulane University, state that chronic fatigue (being always tired) and lack of energy are among the commonest presenting complaints of patients. Calling the symptoms fatigue doesn't help the patient much, finding the cause of the fatigue often requires careful examination and study of the patient's complaints and also patient study of the personality or make-up of the patient himself. This is called the psychobiologic method of managing a patient with fatigue. The physician gets a flying start in his examination by the fact that it is generally estimated that 80 per cent of such patients (four of every five) are psychoneurotic or emotional.

Unfortunately, as these two physicians point out, it is impossible to measure mental, emotional and physical fatigue by laboratory methods, although laboratory examinations are done as a routine matter. After severe illness, the patient will show a return to normal but a long convalescence is necessary before the person again feels well. Also, if the individual has a neurosis, it is going to take him longer to get rid of the fatigue. Pension, welfare and workmen's compensation physicians are well aware that "fatigue and lack of energy often do not represent disease of organs so much as they represent an emotional disorder involving the entire personality structure. Fatigue is a prominent symptom in many patients due to emotions such as boredom, homesickness, anxiety or emotional reaction to disturbing thoughts. It may represent the division of nervous energy into unhealthy channels such as worry and lack of proper motivation."

When the patient becomes tired too easily, Drs. Harms and Soniat state that this tiredness is an anxiety reaction. By not relaxing properly (mental, physical and emotional relaxation), such patients, because of chronic tension and anxiety, "wear themselves out" and have the sensation of fatigue. In these anxious days, we must always remember that tenseness tires.

Neurosis is becoming increasingly common in our civilization. The Sweetheart of the Convention

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Chicago—The outcome of this convention is going to depend on pressure politics — the political steamroller vs. the pocketbook steamroller.

Taft has already shown how he can ride roughshod over the Eisenhower forces in the preliminary skirmishes, but the big-money boys are quietly dismantling the steamroller right out from under Taft. With a few strong tugs of the financial strings, they are pulling key men into the Eisenhower camp, and the Taft steamroller has already lost momentum.

It's still a question as to whether Taft's frontal pressure or Wall Street's backstage pressure will win, but here's how the battle of the pressures is shaping up:

Taft High Pressure—Taft has complete control of the convention machinery. His hand-picked people will be swinging the gavel, delivering the key speeches and running the committees. Taft is counting heavily upon his keynote speaker, General MacArthur, to take the convention by emotional storm. MacArthur will blast the Democratic administration's "Europe first" policy, thus take an indirect swipe at Eisenhower. Taft forces also have cornered the bulk of the gallery tickets, will stack the bleachers with Taft rooters. And the Chicago Tribune will add to this psychological advantage by bursting Taft bombshells throughout the convention.

Eisenhower High Pressure — Biggest blow to Taft was the little-noticed announcement that Sinclair Weeks had come out for Eisenhower. As GOP finance chairman, Weeks holds the key to the Republican treasury. In the past, he has leaned toward Taft; raised $82,000 for Taft in 1950. But Weeks couldn't withstand the financial pressure from Wall Street, has now pitched his tent in the Eisenhower camp. Other key men, who have felt the financial needle, include Pennsylvania's Gov. John Fine and Michigan's Arthur Summerfield. Both have been under terrific pressure from the big-money boys to come out for Ike.

Meanwhile, the nomination still depends on which way the following pivotal states will go.

Michigan — The Michigan delegation will caucus on Sunday night, and Arthur Summerfield, a Chevrolet dealer, has already promised General Motors privately to come out for Eisenhower. This announcement is supposed to launch the Ike bandwagon on the eve of the convention. However, Taft has been busy pulling strings with Michigan's Sen. Homer Ferguson, who will try to trip up Summerfield. Ferguson has promised Taft to fight inside the caucus to keep the delegation uninstructed. This is the most the Taft forces can hope for.

Pennsylvania—Governor Fine is caught in a terrific cross-current. The Wall Street crowd, working through some of the big steel companies, is pressuring Fine to throw his weight behind Eisenhower. However, Taft has been working through General MacArthur, whom Fine worships. At Taft's behest, MacArthur telephoned Fine, urged him to support Taft. As a result, the governor is still tightrope walking precariously down the middle. But the majority of his delegation is no longer with him. Governor Dewey has been meeting quietly in Philadelphia with Pennsylvania county chairmen, who swing the most weight in Pennsylvania politics. As a result, no matter what Fine decides, the majority of Pennsylvania's delegates will vote for Eisenhower. Fine can swing about 17 votes at the most.

California—Delegates will stick with Gov. Earl Warren for the first ballots. When they start to break, most of them are expected to go for Eisenhower, though 20 to 23 are in Taft's pocket.

Maryland—The Maryland delegation, except for a few strays, are sewed up for Eisenhower.

Thus the majority of the key delegations are lined up for Eisenhower. But if Taft goes into the convention with strong first-ballot strength, he may be able to pick up enough scattered votes from Pennsylvania and Michigan to put him across. As it now stands, it looks as if Governor Fine's 17 votes might be deciding.

Absentee GOP Landlords

The real issue at stake in the battle to seat delegates at Chicago is more important than whether Eisenhower or Taft is nominated. It gets down to the basic question of whether the Republican party really wants to function in the south.

Once every four years, Republicans have a chance to demonstrate whether they mean what they say about organizing the south by breaking up the GOP absentee-landlord feudal system which keeps the Republican party in a more degraded state of peonage than tenant farmers on the worst Mississippi plantation.

Here is how it works.

In South Carolina, the Republican national committeeman is Edgar Morris, supposed to live in Pickens, S. C., but who actually lives in Washington, D. C., has an electric-appliance store there, a $100,000 mansion, and is so well established that he has long been a member of the D. C. Board of Public Welfare, on which he could not serve unless he were a D. C. citizen.

Last week, South Carolina Republicans got irked with their absentee landlord, got a prelimanary ruling from a South Carolina court that Morris is in every legal and moral sense" a resident of Washington, D. C., and has no right to represent the Republican party in South Carolina.

Yet illegal-resident Mr. Morris is now in Chicago, sitting on the key credentials committee where he rules on the legality of himself and other southern delegates to sit. It is hardly necessary to add that he is for Taft.

Absentee Landlady

Morris's co-partner from South Carolina is Mrs. John Messervy, Republican national committeewoman, who is supposed to live at 159 Rutledge Ave., Charleston. If you try to get her at that address, however, as I did, you will be unsuccessful. For Mrs. Messervy for some time owned radio station WLOU in Louisville, Ky., now lives at Williston, Ky. She is also for Taft.

Another absentee political landlord is the Republican national committeeman from Mississippi, Perry Howard, a Negro attorney living in Washington. Mr. Howard is just as much a pillar of the Negro community in Washington as Mr. Morris is of the white community.

He seldom goes to Mississippi, has no more influence in Mississippi than the Shah of Persia, but is able to deliver a neat bloc of Mississippi delegates to Taft. Senator Taft, incidentally, gratefully put Mr. Howard's son on the Senate payroll as a postoffice clerk when the Republicans controlled Congress.

The only way you build up a political party is by living near and among the voters. The absentee-landlord system and the pocketbook delegates which Republicans seem to want continued in the south will never build up a party.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Chicago, July 3—This country began to go to smash in Chicago forty years ago. Theodore Roosevelt, who had a wide streak of the same hypocritical selfishness that later distinguished Franklin D., came to Chicago determined to wrest the Republican nomination from President Taft or cause the election of the Democratic nominee who proved to be Woodrow Wilson, a supercilious, arrogant, hateful brow, incapable of friendship, disloyal in his domestic relations and unmasculine in his personality. Wilson was a he-shrew. He was elected for his second term in November, 1916 on the slogan "He kept us out of war." He was inaugurated on March 4, 1917 and we went into the First World War the next month.

Franklin D. Roosevelt went up and down the country in 1940 mouthing "Again and again and again" in the Groton gullah of his that American boys would not be sent to fight in a foreign war when already he had privately contracted with Winston Churchill to send American troops to Iceland to relieve British divisions for possible action against the Germans.

William Howard Taft, the father of Senator Taft, was elected president in 1908 with Theodore Roosevelt's blessing. Teddy, as in his patronizing vulgarity he delighted to be called, thought he was just placing Taft in the White House as custodian until he should return to occupancy in 1913. T. R. then went hunting in Africa and so kept his fame going in the press of the world. He also reviewed German troops with the Kaiser at Potsdam.

When he came back, Taft refused to get out of the White House on demand. He was a constitutional conservative whereas T.R. was a showman with no principles and so treacherous that some reporters interviewed him in pairs for corroboration. He was so conceited that he demanded a medal of honor for his cheap exploit with the ridiculous Rough Riders in Cuba, certifying his own heroism. He wanted the medal for a political campaign. He never got it.

Long before the 1912 convention opened in the smelly old Chicago Coliseum, it was obvious that Taft was in. Roosevelt had only a comparative handful but with these few and his gaudy effrontery he tried to take the convention by hysteria. There is a belief that Wendell Willkie did this in 1940. Be that as it may, conventions usually are run by machinery no more emotional than a printing press.

A spectacular woman in a red dress suddenly hove up in the Coliseum gallery and set up a yell "We want Teddy. We want Teddy." She had a big picture of T.R. and, I believe, an American flag. The day was terribly hot. The cry was taken up all over the hall, a sooty old heap with naked arched girders where the old First Ward ball, a flagrant prostitutes' and brothel-keepers' convention, was an annual gala in those days. The first thing Elihu Root, the chairman, knew, up there on the flying bridge, the "demonstration" was almost out of control. But Root stood there whacking the block with his gavel and the Taft delegates naturally held fast.

Great hordes went shoving up and down the aisles and around and about, sometimes with this woman in red on the shoulders of some of the bucks at the head end. Women couldn't vote then. The stampede, a mechanized affair performed by stooges brought in for the purpose, finally ran out of gas. The Roosevelt mob also tried to swamp the majority delegates on viva voce votes. The Taft men would vote "Aye" in their legitimate numbers, but when the Nays were taken, the mob rolled the "Noes" in thunderous booms. Root would wait until the echoes had died away and then call out in a small voice, "the Ayes plainly have it." There were no amplifiers.

The country did not then have the experience on the vain, arrogant, imperious Roosevelt character that we have acquired to our sorrow and at our ghastly cost in the forty years since. T.R. was very "popular" with the mob as F.D.R. was later.

Alice Roosevelt, never a really handsome woman nor, by any fair judgment, pretty, was known as Princess Alice. She had recently married Nicholas Longworth, a Cincinnati congressman of some means, a rather handsome guy but somewhat bald. They took obvious delight in striding swiftly along Michigan avenue, attracting attention. The people of Chicago are saps for celebrities and yokels would tag along after Alice and Nick as they had after Jim Jeffries a little while before. Although they hate each other and Alice treats Eleanor as a caricature, they look alike and both speak with that mouthful-of-mush impairment which might be due to some disarrangement of the normal order of the teeth. Alice wore a color which had been called "Alice Blue" and she had had a fine build-up during her father's trick in the White House, which consisted of the unexpired bit of McKinley's hitch and a four-year term of his own. The Roosevelts were the only presidents who ever

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Discusses Youths' 1952 Opportunities

Babson Park, Mass., July 4—During the past month nearly every family has had some young member finish school or college and go out into the cold world to work.

Far Fields Look Green

Some of these have taken jobs away from home. The brighter lights of another city have looked good. They want to be connected with some big corporation which they have seen advertised in national magazines, forgetting that the large ones have their troubles as well as the small ones. Besides, one does not learn as much with a large company. Unfortunate is the young person who thinks his days for study and learning are over because he has "graduated" and has a "diploma."

Young people should also think of the possibility of World War 3 when selecting a place to settle. This means that the twelve large cities cited by the government as especially vulnerable should be avoided. These are: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Baltimore, St. Louis, Boston, Washington and San Francisco. Surely, these cities are no places to take a young girl and start to bring up a family. Hence, stay where you now live.

Toads and Puddles

The real purpose of my little sermon this week is to commend the young people who are getting jobs in the community where they were raised — the city or town which has paid for their education —where they have relatives and friends. These graduates are doing the smart thing. The first principle of success is to build upon the foundations already constructed. These foundations for you, my reader, are in local communities.

Thousands of young people have asked me, "What chance have I without money or capital?" I immediately reply, "You have as much chance to make friends as anyone; real friends are the best capital you can have." I have 170 people here in my Statistical Organization and we are employing more all the time. When looking up the references of applicants for jobs, I always want to know how many "contacts" they have and the character of these contacts. Other things being equal, the one with the most contacts gets the job. Your best contacts are in your home town or city. Stay where you are. Protect and increase your present contacts. Everyone one of them is worth $500 each to you as capital. Better be a big toad in a little puddle, than a little toad in a big puddle!

Opportunities for Growth

Statistics show that the rate of growth of some of the largest cities is already declining. The big increase in population is in the towns and smaller cities. These now offer the real opportunities to wide awake young people. Therefore, get a job in the city where your family now lives. Marry a local boy or girl and raise some good kids. Take an interest in the schools, churches and civic organizations. They all need new blood and new ideas. Remember all the present leaders and big shots will die off someday—be one of their successors. This is the least you can do.

Don't be too fussy about the special business or industry where you are working or are going to work. Statistics show that some families are making a great success of every industry and every kind of a store. This proves there are opportunities in every factory, store and other business in your city if the management is wide awake, honest and aggressive. In fact, with a "sleepy" employer you may have a better opportunity than with some other. If you have any doubts as to who are the 'wide awake" ones, apply for a job with those who advertise. This is the best barometer that I know of as to whether a concern is on its toes and headed for growth.

Watch Population

From 1940 to 1950 the net growth in population of the U. S. was about 19,000,000. If we avoid World War 3, there will be a net growth in population between 1950 and 1960 of about 25,000,000. These people, moreover, will be better educated and better physically. Although we may have a temporary slump in business and employment during the next two or three years, sometime before 1960 we should witness great prosperity. This means that this year's graduates have the greatest opportunities of any young people who have ever gone forth into the world of business.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATE DISPUTES

Six days before the Republican Convention opens, the party's national committee begins hearings in Chicago on 72 disputed southern delegates. The proceedings rival the deliberations of the Supreme Court in public attention.

It seems proper to hope that the national committee will weigh the disputes with the fair-minded detachment of a high court. Yet, on the basis of the committee's actions in recent weeks, we can have no guarantee of it.

The committee did accept for settlement the controversy involving all 38 of Texas' GOP delegates, when on a technicality it might have sent 32 of these contests back to the state level for disposition. This is all to the good. The Texas case is the heart of the matter.

But the contests involving district delegates in two other key southern states, Louisiana and Georgia, were sent back for handling by their respective state party committees.

It happens that the state group which normally wins recognition in Georgia at convention time favors General Eisenhower, while the state committee in Louisiana is controlled by sympathizers of Senator Taft. If the decisions in those states follow the lines of control, we may have each side winning a contest victory.

The Louisiana committee already has decided seven district contests in favor of Taft delegates and against rival Eisenhower people. Two more district seats probably will go the same way.

Yet even if the two main contenders should emerge almost even from these Georgia-Louisiana decisions, can we assume there is automatic justice in such a division of delegates?

In Louisiana, the essence of the Eisenhower delegates' claim to status as the proper legal delegates rests wholly in their contention that the state committee, Taft-dominated, ruthlessly shunted them aside and illegally named a rival slate.

Is it proper, therefore, that this same state committee shall now have sat in judgment on the very transgression of which it is accused? Could the committee have been expected to rule against itself?

The Eisenhower claims in Louisiana may or may not be true. All we in the nation can say is that we shall never know, since the case was heard and judged by one of the parties to the dispute. What sort of justice is that? It seems a sad demonstration for a party which wishes to go before the electorate in November with pride in its superior morality.

Public opinion challenges the Republican national committee to hear the Texas and other disputes at Chicago with impartiality and decide them on their merits. If the committee fails in this responsibility, it will then rest with the credentials committee, and finally the full convention itself, to do justice.

IN SOVIET GEORGIA

"How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child!" Stalin must feel something like this at hearing that corruption has invaded the collective farm system in his native state, Georgia. The seriousness of the crisis is shown by the attendance, at a party committee meeting, of Lavrenti P. Beria, deputy premier of the Soviet Union, head of the secret police, and a not unlikely candidate for the succession to Stalin. When he attends a local official meeting, it is a sure sign that no ordinary routine matters are involved.

Probably the Communists will settle this new disturbance in their usual way, concentration camps and murder. Force is the only governmental device they know and by excessive use of it they invite the very revolution which they seek to prevent.

We are only young once, 'tis true. And when we observe the pep and energy propelling youth today we are glad it was only once. It would seem impossible to go through that stage again!

PENSIONS

A pension is a saving out of wages, with or without employer participation. It is like buying an annuity, a life insurance policy, stocks, bonds, or any other investment or putting money in a savings bank. There is no reason for the mysticism which surrounds the word. It is a method of putting aside money for the rainy day.

When an employer participates in a pension fund, he, in effect, provides additional wages. This means that an increasing share of the earnings goes to salaries and wages, a cost which always must be added to the price of the commodity or service sold. In a deflationary period, this cost must be related to the purchaser's sales resistance; in an inflationary period, any additional cost decreases the purchasing power of our money.

In an older and more secure America, such matters were regarded as the privilege of the individual who decided for himself, at his own risk, what he wished to do with his own money. In our present Fabian Socialistic America, in which freedom of judgment and equality of opportunity are being bartered for fiscal security, the pension has grown increasingly popular.

The problem here is the same as in the very nature of wages. It depends on the ratio of the value of money when saved to the value of money when spent. For instance, the American dollar is now valued, in purchasing power, at 53 cents. Pensions granted in, say 1939 or 1940, are worth about half today. This may be satisfactory to the individual concerned, but it is not security. The only way to make such a pension secure is to have the payments at all times made in money of the value at the time the amount was paid in. This is an utterly impossible proposition because even on a small scale, such a procedure would produce a spiral inflation with a black market for trading in pension checks which would be the best currency available.

The pension depends upon prosperity. Unless it is paid out of taxes. From that standpoint, it is the same as profit-sharing. A 1929 dip in our economy could wipe out pension funds. A greater danger is that employer participation is possible only while the individual works for the particular firm, except when a life insurance company annuity plan continues the pension upon new employment. However, a period of unemployment means prolonged non-payments into pension funds. It is not possible to guarantee permanent full employment in any country. Unemployment insurance or relief is not the same as employment.

Therefore, to repeat, the value of the pension depends not only on the value of the currency of a country but also upon continued employment while the pension fund is being built up. This involves a prolonged progressive or state economy with no retrogressive periods. Such an economy has not yet existed in human history, even among new countries building an industry from scratch.

The real problem, then, in any pension scheme, is not only to provide for the security of the individual and his family, but for the security of the pension fund itself. There has been a vast experience with this in Germany where pension funds were general from Bismarck to Hitler. What the inflation after World War I did not wipe out, the fiscal policies of Hitler and the effects of World War II did. The German pension systems deteriorated with the collapse, first, of German currency, and then of German industry.

One of the principal social objections to current American pension systems is the actuarially-enforced retirement of strong, able-bodied, mentally alert and long-experienced persons at the age of 65. Because medical science and improved social conditions have not only prolonged life but also human usefulness, this country is being faced by an increasingly large population of frustrated men and women who could continue their work but are put out at the peak of their knowledge and usefulness.

This is a separate problem to which State Senator Thomas Desmond in New York has devoted himself—the problem of the oldsters. The pension might provide enough to buy a trailer and to traipse about the country following the seasons from Florida to Yellowstone, but it does not make for pride or human dignity or personal satisfaction.

This social problem grows more important as the older folks grow more numerous and healthier.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

FATIGUE

One of the commonest complaints for which a patient consults his physician is fatigue or tiredness. Formerly, the physician advised more rest and if he could find no cause for fatigue he sent the patient to his dentist, as infected teeth is one of the commonest causes of tiredness and sleepiness. If the dentist or other specialist could find no infection, the physician considered that the patient was working too hard or worrying too much and that a change would be helpful.

In Medical Clinics of North America, Drs. H. E. Harms and T. L. L. Soniat, Tulane University, state that chronic fatigue (being always tired) and lack of energy are among the commonest presenting complaints of patients. Calling the symptoms fatigue doesn't help the patient much, finding the cause of the fatigue often requires careful examination and study of the patient's complaints and also patient study of the personality or make-up of the patient himself. This is called the psychobiologic method of managing a patient with fatigue. The physician gets a flying start in his examination by the fact that it is generally estimated that 80 per cent of such patients (four of every five) are psychoneurotic or emotional.

Unfortunately, as these two physicians point out, it is impossible to measure mental, emotional and physical fatigue by laboratory methods, although laboratory examinations are done as a routine matter. After severe illness, the patient will show a return to normal but a long convalescence is necessary before the person again feels well. Also, if the individual has a neurosis, it is going to take him longer to get rid of the fatigue. Pension, welfare and workmen's compensation physicians are well aware that "fatigue and lack of energy often do not represent disease of organs so much as they represent an emotional disorder involving the entire personality structure. Fatigue is a prominent symptom in many patients due to emotions such as boredom, homesickness, anxiety or emotional reaction to disturbing thoughts. It may represent the division of nervous energy into unhealthy channels such as worry and lack of proper motivation."

When the patient becomes tired too easily, Drs. Harms and Soniat state that this tiredness is an anxiety reaction. By not relaxing properly (mental, physical and emotional relaxation), such patients, because of chronic tension and anxiety, "wear themselves out" and have the sensation of fatigue. In these anxious days, we must always remember that tenseness tires.

The Sweetheart of the Convention

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Chicago—The outcome of this convention is going to depend on pressure politics — the political steamroller vs. the pocketbook steamroller.

Taft has already shown how he can ride roughshod over the Eisenhower forces in the preliminary skirmishes, but the big-money boys are quietly dismantling the steamroller right out from under Taft. With a few strong tugs of the financial strings, they are pulling key men into the Eisenhower camp, and the Taft steamroller has already lost momentum.

It's still a question as to whether Taft's frontal pressure or Wall Street's backstage pressure will win, but here's how the battle of the pressures is shaping up:

Taft High Pressure—Taft has complete control of the convention machinery. His hand-picked people will be swinging the gavel, delivering the key speeches and running the committees. Taft is counting heavily upon his keynote speaker, General MacArthur, to take the convention by emotional storm. MacArthur will blast the Democratic administration's "Europe first" policy, thus take an indirect swipe at Eisenhower. Taft forces also have cornered the bulk of the gallery tickets, will stack the bleachers with Taft rooters. And the Chicago Tribune will add to this psychological advantage by bursting Taft bombshells throughout the convention.

Eisenhower High Pressure — Biggest blow to Taft was the little-noticed announcement that Sinclair Weeks had come out for Eisenhower. As GOP finance chairman, Weeks holds the key to the Republican treasury. In the past, he has leaned toward Taft; raised $82,000 for Taft in 1950. But Weeks couldn't withstand the financial pressure from Wall Street, has now pitched his tent in the Eisenhower camp. Other key men, who have felt the financial needle, include Pennsylvania's Gov. John Fine and Michigan's Arthur Summerfield. Both have been under terrific pressure from the big-money boys to come out for Ike.

Meanwhile, the nomination still depends on which way the following pivotal states will go.

Michigan — The Michigan delegation will caucus on Sunday night, and Arthur Summerfield, a Chevrolet dealer, has already promised General Motors privately to come out for Eisenhower. This announcement is supposed to launch the Ike bandwagon on the eve of the convention. However, Taft has been busy pulling strings with Michigan's Sen. Homer Ferguson, who will try to trip up Summerfield. Ferguson has promised Taft to fight inside the caucus to keep the delegation uninstructed. This is the most the Taft forces can hope for.

Pennsylvania—Governor Fine is caught in a terrific cross-current. The Wall Street crowd, working through some of the big steel companies, is pressuring Fine to throw his weight behind Eisenhower. However, Taft has been working through General MacArthur, whom Fine worships. At Taft's behest, MacArthur telephoned Fine, urged him to support Taft. As a result, the governor is still tightrope walking precariously down the middle. But the majority of his delegation is no longer with him. Governor Dewey has been meeting quietly in Philadelphia with Pennsylvania county chairmen, who swing the most weight in Pennsylvania politics. As a result, no matter what Fine decides, the majority of Pennsylvania's delegates will vote for Eisenhower. Fine can swing about 17 votes at the most.

California—Delegates will stick with Gov. Earl Warren for the first ballots. When they start to break, most of them are expected to go for Eisenhower, though 20 to 23 are in Taft's pocket.

Maryland—The Maryland delegation, except for a few strays, are sewed up for Eisenhower.

Thus the majority of the key delegations are lined up for Eisenhower. But if Taft goes into the convention with strong first-ballot strength, he may be able to pick up enough scattered votes from Pennsylvania and Michigan to put him across. As it now stands, it looks as if Governor Fine's 17 votes might be deciding.

Absentee GOP Landlords

The real issue at stake in the battle to seat delegates at Chicago is more important than whether Eisenhower or Taft is nominated. It gets down to the basic question of whether the Republican party really wants to function in the south.

Once every four years, Republicans have a chance to demonstrate whether they mean what they say about organizing the south by breaking up the GOP absentee-landlord feudal system which keeps the Republican party in a more degraded state of peonage than tenant farmers on the worst Mississippi plantation.

Here is how it works.

In South Carolina, the Republican national committeeman is Edgar Morris, supposed to live in Pickens, S. C., but who actually lives in Washington, D. C., has an electric-appliance store there, a $100,000 mansion, and is so well established that he has long been a member of the D. C. Board of Public Welfare, on which he could not serve unless he were a D. C. citizen.

Last week, South Carolina Republicans got irked with their absentee landlord, got a prelimanary ruling from a South Carolina court that Morris is in every legal and moral sense" a resident of Washington, D. C., and has no right to represent the Republican party in South Carolina.

Yet illegal-resident Mr. Morris is now in Chicago, sitting on the key credentials committee where he rules on the legality of himself and other southern delegates to sit. It is hardly necessary to add that he is for Taft.

Absentee Landlady

Morris's co-partner from South Carolina is Mrs. John Messervy, Republican national committeewoman, who is supposed to live at 159 Rutledge Ave., Charleston. If you try to get her at that address, however, as I did, you will be unsuccessful. For Mrs. Messervy for some time owned radio station WLOU in Louisville, Ky., now lives at Williston, Ky. She is also for Taft.

Another absentee political landlord is the Republican national committeeman from Mississippi, Perry Howard, a Negro attorney living in Washington. Mr. Howard is just as much a pillar of the Negro community in Washington as Mr. Morris is of the white community.

He seldom goes to Mississippi, has no more influence in Mississippi than the Shah of Persia, but is able to deliver a neat bloc of Mississippi delegates to Taft. Senator Taft, incidentally, gratefully put Mr. Howard's son on the Senate payroll as a postoffice clerk when the Republicans controlled Congress.

The only way you build up a political party is by living near and among the voters. The absentee-landlord system and the pocketbook delegates which Republicans seem to want continued in the south will never build up a party.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Chicago, July 3—This country began to go to smash in Chicago forty years ago. Theodore Roosevelt, who had a wide streak of the same hypocritical selfishness that later distinguished Franklin D., came to Chicago determined to wrest the Republican nomination from President Taft or cause the election of the Democratic nominee who proved to be Woodrow Wilson, a supercilious, arrogant, hateful brow, incapable of friendship, disloyal in his domestic relations and unmasculine in his personality. Wilson was a he-shrew. He was elected for his second term in November, 1916 on the slogan "He kept us out of war." He was inaugurated on March 4, 1917 and we went into the First World War the next month.

Franklin D. Roosevelt went up and down the country in 1940 mouthing "Again and again and again" in the Groton gullah of his that American boys would not be sent to fight in a foreign war when already he had privately contracted with Winston Churchill to send American troops to Iceland to relieve British divisions for possible action against the Germans.

William Howard Taft, the father of Senator Taft, was elected president in 1908 with Theodore Roosevelt's blessing. Teddy, as in his patronizing vulgarity he delighted to be called, thought he was just placing Taft in the White House as custodian until he should return to occupancy in 1913. T. R. then went hunting in Africa and so kept his fame going in the press of the world. He also reviewed German troops with the Kaiser at Potsdam.

When he came back, Taft refused to get out of the White House on demand. He was a constitutional conservative whereas T.R. was a showman with no principles and so treacherous that some reporters interviewed him in pairs for corroboration. He was so conceited that he demanded a medal of honor for his cheap exploit with the ridiculous Rough Riders in Cuba, certifying his own heroism. He wanted the medal for a political campaign. He never got it.

Long before the 1912 convention opened in the smelly old Chicago Coliseum, it was obvious that Taft was in. Roosevelt had only a comparative handful but with these few and his gaudy effrontery he tried to take the convention by hysteria. There is a belief that Wendell Willkie did this in 1940. Be that as it may, conventions usually are run by machinery no more emotional than a printing press.

A spectacular woman in a red dress suddenly hove up in the Coliseum gallery and set up a yell "We want Teddy. We want Teddy." She had a big picture of T.R. and, I believe, an American flag. The day was terribly hot. The cry was taken up all over the hall, a sooty old heap with naked arched girders where the old First Ward ball, a flagrant prostitutes' and brothel-keepers' convention, was an annual gala in those days. The first thing Elihu Root, the chairman, knew, up there on the flying bridge, the "demonstration" was almost out of control. But Root stood there whacking the block with his gavel and the Taft delegates naturally held fast.

Great hordes went shoving up and down the aisles and around and about, sometimes with this woman in red on the shoulders of some of the bucks at the head end. Women couldn't vote then. The stampede, a mechanized affair performed by stooges brought in for the purpose, finally ran out of gas. The Roosevelt mob also tried to swamp the majority delegates on viva voce votes. The Taft men would vote "Aye" in their legitimate numbers, but when the Nays were taken, the mob rolled the "Noes" in thunderous booms. Root would wait until the echoes had died away and then call out in a small voice, "the Ayes plainly have it." There were no amplifiers.

The country did not then have the experience on the vain, arrogant, imperious Roosevelt character that we have acquired to our sorrow and at our ghastly cost in the forty years since. T.R. was very "popular" with the mob as F.D.R. was later.

Alice Roosevelt, never a really handsome woman nor, by any fair judgment, pretty, was known as Princess Alice. She had recently married Nicholas Longworth, a Cincinnati congressman of some means, a rather handsome guy but somewhat bald. They took obvious delight in striding swiftly along Michigan avenue, attracting attention. The people of Chicago are saps for celebrities and yokels would tag along after Alice and Nick as they had after Jim Jeffries a little while before. Although they hate each other and Alice treats Eleanor as a caricature, they look alike and both speak with that mouthful-of-mush impairment which might be due to some disarrangement of the normal order of the teeth. Alice wore a color which had been called "Alice Blue" and she had had a fine build-up during her father's trick in the White House, which consisted of the unexpired bit of McKinley's hitch and a four-year term of his own. The Roosevelts were the only presidents who ever

Babson Discusses Youths' 1952 Opportunities

Babson Park, Mass., July 4—During the past month nearly every family has had some young member finish school or college and go out into the cold world to work.

Far Fields Look Green

Some of these have taken jobs away from home. The brighter lights of another city have looked good. They want to be connected with some big corporation which they have seen advertised in national magazines, forgetting that the large ones have their troubles as well as the small ones. Besides, one does not learn as much with a large company. Unfortunate is the young person who thinks his days for study and learning are over because he has "graduated" and has a "diploma."

Young people should also think of the possibility of World War 3 when selecting a place to settle. This means that the twelve large cities cited by the government as especially vulnerable should be avoided. These are: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Baltimore, St. Louis, Boston, Washington and San Francisco. Surely, these cities are no places to take a young girl and start to bring up a family. Hence, stay where you now live.

Toads and Puddles

The real purpose of my little sermon this week is to commend the young people who are getting jobs in the community where they were raised — the city or town which has paid for their education —where they have relatives and friends. These graduates are doing the smart thing. The first principle of success is to build upon the foundations already constructed. These foundations for you, my reader, are in local communities.

Thousands of young people have asked me, "What chance have I without money or capital?" I immediately reply, "You have as much chance to make friends as anyone; real friends are the best capital you can have." I have 170 people here in my Statistical Organization and we are employing more all the time. When looking up the references of applicants for jobs, I always want to know how many "contacts" they have and the character of these contacts. Other things being equal, the one with the most contacts gets the job. Your best contacts are in your home town or city. Stay where you are. Protect and increase your present contacts. Everyone one of them is worth $500 each to you as capital. Better be a big toad in a little puddle, than a little toad in a big puddle!

Opportunities for Growth

Statistics show that the rate of growth of some of the largest cities is already declining. The big increase in population is in the towns and smaller cities. These now offer the real opportunities to wide awake young people. Therefore, get a job in the city where your family now lives. Marry a local boy or girl and raise some good kids. Take an interest in the schools, churches and civic organizations. They all need new blood and new ideas. Remember all the present leaders and big shots will die off someday—be one of their successors. This is the least you can do.

Don't be too fussy about the special business or industry where you are working or are going to work. Statistics show that some families are making a great success of every industry and every kind of a store. This proves there are opportunities in every factory, store and other business in your city if the management is wide awake, honest and aggressive. In fact, with a "sleepy" employer you may have a better opportunity than with some other. If you have any doubts as to who are the 'wide awake" ones, apply for a job with those who advertise. This is the best barometer that I know of as to whether a concern is on its toes and headed for growth.

Watch Population

From 1940 to 1950 the net growth in population of the U. S. was about 19,000,000. If we avoid World War 3, there will be a net growth in population between 1950 and 1960 of about 25,000,000. These people, moreover, will be better educated and better physically. Although we may have a temporary slump in business and employment during the next two or three years, sometime before 1960 we should witness great prosperity. This means that this year's graduates have the greatest opportunities of any young people who have ever gone forth into the world of business.

Beer Did the Trick

New York, July 5 (AP) — Each time police tried to get near John Payden yesterday, he threatened to jump from the roof of his Bronx home. Finally, one officer suggested: "How about a beer?" "Sure," said Payden, 54-year-old stock appraiser. The policemen obtained the beer and handed it up to Payden. The time it took him to drink it was just long enough for them to sneak up a ladder behind him and grab him. Payden was taken to a hospital for observation.

All your customers and prospects read the newspaper – at the time they choose, for as long as they choose – for the advertising as well as for news or for fun.

When you're backed by newspaper advertising, your story has a chance to reach everybody . . . not just comedy fans, or mystery fans, or sports fans . . . but everybody.

That's why advertisers today invest more money in newspapers than in any other form of advertising. Newspapers are first with the most news . . . the most people . . . the most advertisers!

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

"People laugh less after forty." Well, by that time the jokesmiths are resurrecting the ones they heard twenty years ago.

James, a cautious young man who liked everything to be plainly understood, was engaged to marry a girl in a nearby city. Came the wedding day and the time for the ceremony, but no James. The bride was frantic when she received this telegram:

"Missed early train. Will arrive 4:30. Don't marry until I get there. James."

Summer has come to mean that long stretch of uncomfortable weather between ten days of pleasant weather in the spring and a week of ideal conditions in the autumn.

Sam—I heard you were a friend of President Truman's.

Phil—I'll say I am. There's nothing I wouldn't do for him and there's nothing he wouldn't do for me. In fact, we've lived all our lives doing nothing for each other.

Rags make paper; paper makes money; money makes banks; banks make loans; loans make poverty; poverty makes rags.

Oshkosh Again

Grandma Jackson and her young grandson were riding on a train. Grandma had dozed and suddenly she sat up.

Grandma—What was that station the conductor called?

Boy—He didn't announce any station; he just put his head in the door and sneezed.

Grandma—Get the bundles together quickly. This is Oshkosh.

The piano fighting for its life in our neighborhood is taking a terrible beating.

Weatherman—Guess what, dear. (On arriving home) I've been transferred to San Francisco.

Wife—That's good. I've noticed the weather here doesn't agree with you.

Worry does a perfect job of getting you nothing but more of the same.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of 'Etiquette,' 'Children Are People,' etc.)

TACT REQUIRED

A reader explains: "Some friends of ours, former residents of this town, are coming here to visit their three married daughters, who still live in this city. Because the daughters live in small apartments, I have asked them to make their headquarters at our house. While they are here, I would like to give a small cocktail-tea for them so that their many friends here will get a chance to see them. Is it necessary for me to invite her daughters and their husbands to this party? They are much younger and I do not think they will fit in. Could they possibly feel slighted if not included?"

Quite definitely they would have reason to feel slighted—unless you explain that everyone coming is elderly and you know they would not be amused.

Earrings and Robes

Dear Mrs. Post: When a church choir is robed, is it proper for some of the women members to wear earrings? I've always thought the reason for robes was to give the choir a uniform appearance and not attract attention to individual members. However, certain young members of our choir disagree with me, and I would like your opinion.

Answer: The few whose ears are pierced and who always wear small "button pearls" may wear them — but conspicuous ones are unsuitable.

Wedding of Bride in Mourning

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother died very suddenly the latter part of April and I would like to know how long I have to wait before I can have a wedding with all the trimmings?

Answer: A small wedding including only your intimate friends in addition to your families would be proper as soon as you please. But a big wedding, including acquaintances, should not take place before the autumn. (Change of season marks lapse of time better than actual number of days.)

Signatures Not Noted

Dear Mrs. Post: Should the people who wrote their names in a register at the funeral home be thanked in any way, and how?

Answer: Thanks are neither necessary, nor expected.

What are the essential requirements for the brides' hope chest? Mrs. Post's leaflet E-5 includes a list of needs for the hope chest and trousseau which can be increased as circumstances permit. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her care of The Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19 N. Y.

Unusual Note in Hot-Weather Wear

The new-found elegance of cotton is evidenced by these designs, in which the fabric has been handled exactly as any luxury fabric would be treated. Hope Skillman's needlepoint pique is used (left) for an evening gown that has front skirt panel filled in with nylon tulle. Applique embroidery is used to emphasize the forward skirt movement and hipline. Tweed damask cotton (center) is cut into a full-skirted Summer suit that has wide, rounded collar and arched hipline. Copper-colored coin dots sprinkle the surface (right) of this dress that has arched hipline and very full front panel. Neckline is cut to deep V.—By Gaile Dugas, NEA Woman's Editor.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

New Collections Of Crafts Seen

Woodstock, July 3—The unusual contributions of several new consignors are attracting considerable attention in the window of the Craft Cooperative shop on the village green. The gleaming polished bronze bowls, bookends, and the bronze and ebony blotter rocker offer something strikingly new in the metal line. They were created by Jeanne K. Broadhead, of Stone Ridge, who is also showing an original collection of jewelry. Featured are a pair of silver earrings with long ebony drops. Miss Broadhead has just been graduated from the School for American Craftsmen of the Rochester Institute of Technology.

Bill Miller has recently joined Crafts Cooperative and a number of his fine terra cotta and glaze pieces are on view. Also of unusual interest in the ceramic field are Carl Walters' new tile plaques in white shaded with earthy tones, which he has taken from his original molds he used to make the glass panels in the doors of the Whitney Museum of New York. The smaller tiles, also shown, are replicas of those used in the glass doors of the former Eleanor Cannon house on Mead Mountain road.

Finely mounted pieces of driftwood, by Earl Christiana are available with the aged color and texture of the wood used to best advantage for decorative pieces.

Miss Gardner, who has traveled, painted and taught with her base operations in the Canal Zone, has become inter-American in her psychology and outlook.

From the deck of a Dutch freighter, in 1946, Miss Gardner painted her way around the entire continent of South America and the impressions of this trip penetrates the present exhibition although the actual paintings were produced within the past three years.

The current exhibition of oil paintings and watercolors, at the AAPL Gallery will extend through July 31, and will be open weekdays from 1 to 5 p. m.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of 'Etiquette,' 'Children Are People,' etc.)

TACT REQUIRED

A reader explains: "Some friends of ours, former residents of this town, are coming here to visit their three married daughters, who still live in this city. Because the daughters live in small apartments, I have asked them to make their headquarters at our house. While they are here, I would like to give a small cocktail-tea for them so that their many friends here will get a chance to see them. Is it necessary for me to invite her daughters and their husbands to this party? They are much younger and I do not think they will fit in. Could they possibly feel slighted if not included?"

Quite definitely they would have reason to feel slighted—unless you explain that everyone coming is elderly and you know they would not be amused.

Earrings and Robes

Dear Mrs. Post: When a church choir is robed, is it proper for some of the women members to wear earrings? I've always thought the reason for robes was to give the choir a uniform appearance and not attract attention to individual members. However, certain young members of our choir disagree with me, and I would like your opinion.

Answer: The few whose ears are pierced and who always wear small "button pearls" may wear them — but conspicuous ones are unsuitable.

Wedding of Bride in Mourning

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother died very suddenly the latter part of April and I would like to know how long I have to wait before I can have a wedding with all the trimmings?

Answer: A small wedding including only your intimate friends in addition to your families would be proper as soon as you please. But a big wedding, including acquaintances, should not take place before the autumn. (Change of season marks lapse of time better than actual number of days.)

Signatures Not Noted

Dear Mrs. Post: Should the people who wrote their names in a register at the funeral home be thanked in any way, and how?

Answer: Thanks are neither necessary, nor expected.

What are the essential requirements for the brides' hope chest? Mrs. Post's leaflet E-5 includes a list of needs for the hope chest and trousseau which can be increased as circumstances permit. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her care of The Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19 N. Y.

Unusual Note in Hot-Weather Wear

The new-found elegance of cotton is evidenced by these designs, in which the fabric has been handled exactly as any luxury fabric would be treated. Hope Skillman's needlepoint pique is used (left) for an evening gown that has front skirt panel filled in with nylon tulle. Applique embroidery is used to emphasize the forward skirt movement and hipline. Tweed damask cotton (center) is cut into a full-skirted Summer suit that has wide, rounded collar and arched hipline. Copper-colored coin dots sprinkle the surface (right) of this dress that has arched hipline and very full front panel. Neckline is cut to deep V.—By Gaile Dugas, NEA Woman's Editor.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

New Collections Of Crafts Seen

Woodstock, July 3—The unusual contributions of several new consignors are attracting considerable attention in the window of the Craft Cooperative shop on the village green. The gleaming polished bronze bowls, bookends, and the bronze and ebony blotter rocker offer something strikingly new in the metal line. They were created by Jeanne K. Broadhead, of Stone Ridge, who is also showing an original collection of jewelry. Featured are a pair of silver earrings with long ebony drops. Miss Broadhead has just been graduated from the School for American Craftsmen of the Rochester Institute of Technology.

Bill Miller has recently joined Crafts Cooperative and a number of his fine terra cotta and glaze pieces are on view. Also of unusual interest in the ceramic field are Carl Walters' new tile plaques in white shaded with earthy tones, which he has taken from his original molds he used to make the glass panels in the doors of the Whitney Museum of New York. The smaller tiles, also shown, are replicas of those used in the glass doors of the former Eleanor Cannon house on Mead Mountain road.

Finely mounted pieces of driftwood, by Earl Christiana are available with the aged color and texture of the wood used to best advantage for decorative pieces.

Miss Gardner, who has traveled, painted and taught with her base operations in the Canal Zone, has become inter-American in her psychology and outlook.

From the deck of a Dutch freighter, in 1946, Miss Gardner painted her way around the entire continent of South America and the impressions of this trip penetrates the present exhibition although the actual paintings were produced within the past three years.

The current exhibition of oil paintings and watercolors, at the AAPL Gallery will extend through July 31, and will be open weekdays from 1 to 5 p. m.

Dodgers Trip Yankees, 4-2, to Take First Place in KAA Little League

Glenn-Newell Fans 13 to Tie Strikeout Record; Boice Blanks Giants, 10 to 0

Glenn Newell pitched the Dodgers into first place in the KAA Little League by stopping the Yankees, 4 to 2, on eight hits and 13 strikeouts on Thursday.

Charlie Boice moved into the 4th of July spotlight with a 10 to 0 decision for the Red Sox over the Giants, his second shutout of the season on a three-hit job. He blanked the Yankees 12-0 on June 26th.

Newell tied the KAA Little League strikeout record of 13 held jointly by Dan Steltz and Tony Turck. He got the decision over Steltz, who struck out 10 and permitted five safeties.

Lead by Half Game

The Dodgers lead the Yankees by a half game and the clubs go back at it again in Monday's feature.

The Dodgers scored in the first on a walk to Jim Dickson, a single to right by Bob Pratt and Bob Hoffman's infield out. Ray Reilly doubled in the first of two Dodger markers in the fourth and scored later on Dickson's solo to right field.

Dan Steltz's single and Gene Nagele's double sandwiched by two miscues produced a Yankee marker in the fourth. Both clubs scored a run in the sixth, the Yankees kicking up what looked like a winning rally on singles by Tiano, Steltz, Klonowski and Nagele. But Newell was equal to the challenge, fanning Pat Sangaline and McDonough and getting Mike Sangaline on a grounder for the third out.

Steltz and Nagele each collected two hits for the Yankees but the five Dodger safeties were scattered among five different players.

Red Sox on Spree

The Red Sox backed Charlie Boice's brilliant 3-hit pitching with a 14-hit barrage against Joe Schrowang. Boice aided his own cause with a trio of singles and Tom Van Etten hit safely three times in four trips in the cleanup spot. Jim Cullum, Tom Hallinan and Mike Perry came up with a brace of safeties for the winners. Pete Esposito, the flashy Giant shortstop, collected two of three hits yielded by Boice.

Yankees Trounce Indians, 21-8, to Lead Esopus LL

Beaver Fans 12 And Hits Homer In Wild Slugfest

Roberts and Maxwell Also Hit for Circuit

The Yankees moved to the head of the class in the Esopus Little League yesterday, thumping the Indians, 21 to 8, in a wild error-ridden contest.

Joe "Bolo" Beaver's flashing strikeout ball claimed 12 more victims and he struck a pair of doubles in his own behalf.

Charlie MacIntosh rapped a single, double and homer for the Yankees, while Charlie Maxwell went "3 for 3" for the Indians, including a homer and two singles.

The Yankees struck 19 hits off Josh Israel and ran up a 12-5 lead in the first three frames. The Indians made it 13-8 at the end of four and then handed the Yankees seven unearned runs in the fifth. A fly ball that would have made the third out was dropped and the Yankees rushed seven runs across.

Nat Pratt slugged a double and three singles to lead both squads with four safeties. Bob Short, Stan Roberts, with a homer, and Hank Polhemus were in the two-hit class.

Willie Davis, Josh Israel and Wil Evans collected two hits each for the Indians. Israel, the losing pitcher, racked up nine strikeouts.

Catalina Grind Balks Chadwick

San Pedro, Calif., July 5 (AP)—Florence Chadwick knows today that the toughest problems lie right close to home.

The San Diego swimmer—twice victor over the English Channel—just missed swimming the Catalina Channel yesterday. She wants to try it again Labor Day.

She crawled more than 20/21 of the distance, then had to give up because of cold only three-fourths of a mile from the mainland.

"I was so numb I couldn't cup my hands for my strokes," the husky mermaid said. "It was much colder than the English Channel."

Water temperatures ranged from 56 to 63 degrees during her 15 hours and 50 minutes in the choppy Pacific.

Miss Chadwick appeared to be a shoo-in to complete the swim until she hit a four-knot current several miles off Cabrillo Beach, her destination. She was able to make only three miles in the final three hours.

Regatta Sunday

Featuring more than a half dozen of the country's most famous outboard regatta pilots, the 11th annual Kingston Power Boat Association Regatta unfolds on the Rondout Sunday at 2 p. m.

The 11-heat program will feature among others such outstanding stars as Vic Scott, Fred Mathews, Don Whitfield, Fred and Anne Jensen, Gil Peterman, Dorothy Mayer, Joe Stager and other KPBA favorites.

Officials of the regatta predict the largest entry in history. The public is invited and there is ample spectator vantage points along the water front.

Wiltwycks t oMeet Boulevards Sunday

The spectacular City Baseball League pennant chase, locked in an unprecedented five-way tie for first place, resumes Sunday with the erstwhile leaders, Wiltwyck Motors, battling Boulevard Gulf in the 6 p. m. feature.

Until Jones Dairy tripped the Highland aggregation, 3-2, on Wednesday, the Motormen appeared to be capable of holding first for an indefinite spell.

But the last place Dairymen got good pitching from Joe Modica and a superb relief stint from veteran Tommy Fisher to score an upset.

Wiltwyck will have the pressure on them two days in a row, starting with Sunday's test against Boulevard Gulf. They are carded against Jones Dairy in a return engagement on Tuesday. It appears likely they will haul in their ace, Ernie McCormick, for the Sunday battle.

Baseball Goes Up Horses Come Down

New York, July 5 (AP)—Major league baseball attendance on the July 4 holiday yesterday showed an increase over 1951, but the turnout at the nation's race tracks declined slightly from the Independence Day mark a year ago.

Attendance at the big league ball games aggregated 210,116, up over the 202,226 in 1951. A total of 303,731 turf fans attended 15 tracks compared to 306,496 last year. In the important pari-mutuel department, however, the turf fans bet $2,000,000 more than in 1951. The aggregate betting handle was $16,857,276 compared to $14,480,262 a year ago.

As usual the attendance in both sports was off from last Decoration Day when 225,519 attended the big league games and 357,528 were at 13 race tracks.

Dodgers and Yanks World Series Foes if Tradition Holds True

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees clash in the 1952 World Series it will mark the fulfillment of an old baseball tradition for the first time in three years.

According to tradition, National and American League teams holding first place after games of July 4 will win the pennant.

Both the Dodgers and Yanks lead their respective leagues today but they're not counting the World Series cash yet. Last year the Dodgers led the National League on the 4th and Chicago showed the way in the American. Both teams missed the boat. In 1950 Detroit was out in front in the American and Philadelphia in the National. The Phils made it but the Tigers lost out.

Brooklyn celebrated Independence Day by turning back the runner-up New York Giants, 5-1, in the opener of a doubleheader. The game was called after eight innings of rain and the second game was postponed. The triumph gained at the expense of Sal Maglie, an old nemesis, moved the Brooks three games ahead.

The Yanks safeguarded their 2½ game edge by tripping Washington, 9-4, and 4-3, while the second-place Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns, 3-1 and 2-0, and the third place Cleveland Indians trounced Detroit, 11-0 and 10-1. The Boston Red Sox whacked Philadelphia, 10-5, but the A's bounced back to win the second game, 4-3.

Pittsburgh, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Boston Braves all won doubleheaders in the National League. The Pirates brushed back Cincinnati, 4-2 and 5-2, the Cards whipped Chicago, 13-7 and 4-1, to take over third place from the Cubs and the Braves downed the Philadelphia Phillies, 2-1 and 3-2.

Labine Stops Giants

Maglie, who boasted a string of eight straight victories over Brooklyn including three shutouts this season, lasted only two innings. He walked home a run in the first and was tagged for a two-run homer in the second by Pee Wee Reese. Relief ace Clem Labine blanked the Giants on five hits after spelling Preacher Roe in the first inning. The largest National League crowd of the season, 49,433 fans, turned out.

Yankees In Rhubarb

It took the Yanks nearly eight hours to take the Senators to the cleaners before 26,528 fans including President Truman. The opener was held up two hours and 14 minutes because of rain. The Yanks stashed this game away with three runs in the seventh inning.

The second game also was decided in the seventh. The Yanks scoring three runs following a hotly disputed play. Washington Manager Buck Harris and catcher Mickey Grasso bitterly protested umpire Ed Hurley's ruling that a grounder by Yogi Berra was a fair ball. Senator first baseman Mickey Vernon, believing the ball was foul, didn't step on the base.

Joe Collins scored from third on the play to tie the score at 2-2 and the Yanks tallied two more runs to win. The fans aimed bottles and other missiles at Hurley. Grasso was tossed from the game and play was held up for five minutes.

Lefty Bob Kuzava went all the way for the Yanks. He showed his mettle in the eighth when, after a double and triple, he struck out the side.

Air-tight relief pitcher by former Brownie Bill Kennedy figured prominently in the White Sox sweep over St. Louis. Kennedy surrendered only two hits in 5 1/3 innings in the first game and yielded one blow in two innings of the second. Chicago wrapped the first game up with three runs in the seventh and tucked the second game with two in the sixth.

The competition begins Tuesday, July 8, at 8:48 a. m. with Boice in the first twosome.

Dodgers Trip Yankees, 4-2, to Take First Place in KAA Little League

Glenn-Newell Fans 13 to Tie Strikeout Record; Boice Blanks Giants, 10 to 0

Glenn Newell pitched the Dodgers into first place in the KAA Little League by stopping the Yankees, 4 to 2, on eight hits and 13 strikeouts on Thursday.

Charlie Boice moved into the 4th of July spotlight with a 10 to 0 decision for the Red Sox over the Giants, his second shutout of the season on a three-hit job. He blanked the Yankees 12-0 on June 26th.

Newell tied the KAA Little League strikeout record of 13 held jointly by Dan Steltz and Tony Turck. He got the decision over Steltz, who struck out 10 and permitted five safeties.

Lead by Half Game

The Dodgers lead the Yankees by a half game and the clubs go back at it again in Monday's feature.

The Dodgers scored in the first on a walk to Jim Dickson, a single to right by Bob Pratt and Bob Hoffman's infield out. Ray Reilly doubled in the first of two Dodger markers in the fourth and scored later on Dickson's solo to right field.

Dan Steltz's single and Gene Nagele's double sandwiched by two miscues produced a Yankee marker in the fourth. Both clubs scored a run in the sixth, the Yankees kicking up what looked like a winning rally on singles by Tiano, Steltz, Klonowski and Nagele. But Newell was equal to the challenge, fanning Pat Sangaline and McDonough and getting Mike Sangaline on a grounder for the third out.

Steltz and Nagele each collected two hits for the Yankees but the five Dodger safeties were scattered among five different players.

Red Sox on Spree

The Red Sox backed Charlie Boice's brilliant 3-hit pitching with a 14-hit barrage against Joe Schrowang. Boice aided his own cause with a trio of singles and Tom Van Etten hit safely three times in four trips in the cleanup spot, Jim Cullum, Tom Hallinan and Mike Perry came up with a brace of safeties for the winners. Pete Esposito, the flashy Giant shortstop, collected two of three hits yielded by Boice.

Yankees Trounce Indians, 21-8, to Lead Esopus LL

Beaver Fans 12 And Hits Homer In Wild Slugfest

Roberts and Maxwell Also Hit for Circuit

The Yankees moved to the head of the class in the Esopus Little League yesterday, thumping the Indians, 21 to 8, in a wild error-ridden contest.

Joe "Bolo" Beaver's flashing strikeout ball claimed 12 more victims and he struck a pair of doubles in his own behalf.

Charlie MacIntosh rapped a single, double and homer for the Yankees, while Charlie Maxwell went "3 for 3" for the Indians, including a homer and two singles.

The Yankees struck 19 hits off Josh Israel and ran up a 12-5 lead in the first three frames. The Indians made it 13-8 at the end of four and then handed the Yankees seven unearned runs in the fifth. A fly ball that would have made the third out was dropped and the Yankees rushed seven runs across.

Nat Pratt slugged a double and three singles to lead both squads with four safeties. Bob Short, Stan Roberts, with a homer, and Hank Polhemus were in the two-hit class.

Willie Davis, Josh Israel and Will Evans collected two hits each for the Indians. Israel, the losing pitcher, racked up nine strikeouts.

Regatta Sunday

Featuring more than a half dozen of the country's most famous outboard regatta pilots, the 11th annual Kingston Power Boat Association Regatta unfolds on the Rondout Sunday at 2 p. m.

The 11-heat program will feature among others such outstanding stars as Vic Scott, Fred Mathews, Don Whitfield, Fred and Anne Jensen, Gil Peterman, Dorothy Mayer, Joe Stager and other KPBA favorites.

Officials of the regatta predict the largest entry in history. The public is invited and there is ample spectator vantage points along the water front.

Wiltwycks t oMeet Boulevards Sunday

The spectacular City Baseball League pennant chase, locked in an unprecedented five-way tie for first place, resumes Sunday with the erstwhile leaders, Wiltwyck Motors, battling Boulevard Gulf in the 6 p. m. feature.

Until Jones Dairy tripped the Highland aggregation, 3-2, on Wednesday, the Motormen appeared to be capable of holding first for an indefinite spell.

But the last place Dairymen got good pitching from Joe Modica and a superb relief stint from veteran Tommy Fisher to score an upset.

Wiltwyck will have the pressure on them two days in a row, starting with Sunday's test against Boulevard Gulf. They are carded against Jones Dairy in a return engagement on Tuesday. It appears likely they will haul in their ace, Ernie McCormick, for the Sunday battle.

Charlie Diers and Betty Ann Klonowski Double Winners in '50' Club Field Day

Baseball Goes Up Horses Come Down

New York, July 5 (AP)—Major league baseball attendance on the July 4 holiday yesterday showed an increase over 1951, but the turnout at the nation's race tracks declined slightly from the Independence Day mark a year ago.

Attendance at the big league ball games aggregated 210,116, up over the 202,226 in 1951. A total of 303,731 turf fans attended 15 tracks compared to 306,496 last year. In the important pari-mutuel department, however, the turf fans bet $2,000,000 more than in 1951. The aggregate betting handle was $16,857,276 compared to $14,480,262 a year ago.

Dodgers and Yanks World Series Foes if Tradition Holds True

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees clash in the 1952 World Series it will mark the fulfillment of an old baseball tradition for the first time in three years.

According to tradition, National and American League teams holding first place after games of July 4 will win the pennant.

Both the Dodgers and Yanks lead their respective leagues today but they're not counting the World Series cash yet. Last year the Dodgers led the National League on the 4th and Chicago showed the way in the American. Both teams missed the boat. In 1950 Detroit was out in front in the American and Philadelphia in the National. The Phils made it but the Tigers lost out.

Brooklyn celebrated Independence Day by turning back the runner-up New York Giants, 5-1, in the opener of a doubleheader. The game was called after eight innings of rain and the second game was postponed. The triumph gained at the expense of Sal Maglie, an old nemesis, moved the Brooks three games ahead.

The Yanks safeguarded their 2½ game edge by tripping Washington, 9-4, and 4-3, while the second-place Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns, 3-1 and 2-0, and the third place Cleveland Indians trounced Detroit, 11-0 and 10-1. The Boston Red Sox whacked Philadelphia, 10-5, but the A's bounced back to win the second game, 4-3.

Pittsburgh, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Boston Braves all won doubleheaders in the National League. The Pirates brushed back Cincinnati, 4-2 and 5-2, the Cards whipped Chicago, 13-7 and 4-1, to take over third place from the Cubs and the Braves downed the Philadelphia Phillies, 2-1 and 3-2.

Labine Stops Giants

Maglie, who boasted a string of eight straight victories over Brooklyn including three shutouts this season, lasted only two innings. He walked home a run in the first and was tagged for a two-run homer in the second by Pee Wee Reese. Relief ace Clem Labine blanked the Giants on five hits after spelling Preacher Roe in the first inning. The largest National League crowd of the season, 49,433 fans, turned out.

Yankees In Rhubarb

It took the Yanks nearly eight hours to take the Senators to the cleaners before 26,528 fans including President Truman. The opener was held up two hours and 14 minutes because of rain. The Yanks stashed this game away with three runs in the seventh inning.

The second game also was decided in the seventh. The Yanks scoring three runs following a hotly disputed play. Washington Manager Buck Harris and catcher Mickey Grasso bitterly protested umpire Ed Hurley's ruling that a grounder by Yogi Berra was a fair ball. Senator first baseman Mickey Vernon, believing the ball was foul, didn't step on the base.

Joe Collins scored from third on the play to tie the score at 2-2 and the Yanks tallied two more runs to win. The fans aimed bottles and other missiles at Hurley. Grasso was tossed from the game and play was held up for five minutes.

Lefty Bob Kuzava went all the way for the Yanks. He showed his mettle in the eighth when, after a double and triple, he struck out the side.

Air-tight relief pitcher by former Brownie Bill Kennedy figured prominently in the White Sox sweep over St. Louis. Kennedy surrendered only two hits in 5 1/3 innings in the first game and yielded one blow in two innings of the second. Chicago wrapped the first game up with three runs in the seventh and tucked the second game with two in the sixth.

Catalina Grind Balks Chadwick

San Pedro, Calif., July 5 (AP)—Florence Chadwick knows today that the toughest problems lie right close to home.

The San Diego swimmer—twice victor over the English Channel—just missed swimming the Catalina Channel yesterday. She wants to try it again Labor Day.

She crawled more than 20/21 of the distance, then had to give up because of cold only three-fourths of a mile from the mainland.

"I was so numb I couldn't cup my hands for my strokes," the husky mermaid said. "It was much colder than the English Channel."

Water temperatures ranged from 56 to 63 degrees during her 15 hours and 50 minutes in the choppy Pacific.

Miss Chadwick appeared to be a shoo-in to complete the swim until she hit a four-knot current several miles off Cabrillo Beach, her destination. She was able to make only three miles in the final three hours.

General Is Ready To Start Slugging It Out With Taft

Aboard the Eisenhower Special En Route to Chicago, July 5 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrives in Chicago at noon (EST) today — transformed almost overnight into a fighting-mad presidential candidate.

This was the "new Ike" to his lieutenants. He had decided to step down into the cockpit of politics to slug it out with Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the GOP presidential nomination.

He hadn't planned it that way. He had hoped to campaign on national policies and broad issues without getting involved in personalties. He had intended, by his own admission, to remain aloof from the bare knuckles of national convention maneuvers.

But then came the change. He watched the GOP National Committee, dominated by Taft forces, toss out most of his disputed convention delegates in favor of Taft delegates. He got mad and began slugging.

Force Is Charged

Eisenhower charged yesterday there was evidence that Taft forces were trying to steamroller the convention and force their will on the people.

He charged "a little group of men" were trying to control the Republican party by throwing out majority rule.

He said the issue was "whether politicians are to be loyal servants or arrogant masters" of the voters who send delegates to the convention.

This change began before the general left Denver two days ago aboard a special train which has rolled across Colorado, Nebraska and Iowa. But with each whistle stop, the general's anger and bitterness over the Chicago developments have become more obvious.

Yesterday the general turned loose, at Denison, Ia., a blast against the Taft people when he said the Chicago nomination fight is "a struggle for honor, decency and respect" in politics.

He charged his opposition was trying to conceal from the American people the reasons that led to "certain decisions" within the party as he lashed out at "star chamber" proceedings.

Later, at Boone, Ia.—the birthplace of Mrs. Eisenhower—the general unleased a double-barrelled assault against Taft and the Truman administration.

Must Not Muff Chance

He said of the Taft camp: "Within the past few days there has been developing very definite evidence that a group of men are going to try to thwart the will of these citizens who elected delegates to the national convenion—they are going to try to take away the birthright of those citizens."

The Republican party, he said, has a chance to "lift off our backs the burden of indecisive leadership by .22 caliber men. We mustn't muff that chance."

Probe Is Ordered

Rabies Clinic Set For Ulster County Starting on July 14

County-wide rabies clinics will be held from July 14 through July 23, it was announced today by Dr. Gilbert F. Hoppenstedt, county veterinarian with the Ulster County Health Department.

He said that all dogs which were not vaccinated last year should be brought to the clinics which will be held from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.

In order for dogs to run loose in the county, Hoppenstedt said, 70 per cent of the dog population must be vaccinated. He pointed out that rabies was still present in Ulster county, now certified by the state as a county in which rabies exists.

"If your dog is not vaccinated," Hoppenstedt stated, "it could have rabies. Although rabies cannot be cured, it can be prevented. Vaccination of dogs is the only thing that will control rabies." He emphasized the importance of having all dogs vaccinated to reduce the possibility of spreading rabies to humans. He explained that if a dog had been vaccinated last year it would not be necessary to vaccinate him this year, that the vaccine immunized for a period of two years.

"All dogs six months or older, and those not vaccinated last year, should be vaccinated at the free rabies clinics this year," he pointed out.

Any local groups, sportsmen's clubs, or anyone else in Ulster county interested in having a group of dogs inoculated, are asked to call the Ulster County Health Department, telephone 5300 to arrange special clinics.

Schedule Is Given

The following schedule has been arranged: Monday, July 14, Saugerties Firehouse, Stone Ridge Firehouse, Cordt's Firehouse on Delaware avenue in Kingston, Ellenville Police Station and Gardiner (Dr. C. H. Hoppenstedt's office); Tuesday, July 15, Woodstock Firehouse, New Paltz Firehouse, Hurley Firehouse, Kerhonkson Firehouse and Port Ewen Town Barn; Wednesday, July 16, Highland Firehouse and St. Liberata Hall, East Kingston.

Also, Thursday, July 17, Centerville Garage, Walkill Firehouse, Excelsior Firehouse on Hurley avenue in Kingston, Town of Ulster Town Barn; Monday, July 21, Phoenicia Firehouse and Olive Bridge Firehouse; Tuesday, July 22, Kingston Public Works garage on East O'Reilly street, Marlborough Firehouse, Glasco Firehouse, Bloomington Firehouse, Rosendale Firehouse and the Rapid Firehouse on Hone street in Kingston; Wednesday, July 23, Clintondale Grange Hall.

General Is Ready To Start Slugging It Out With Taft

Aboard the Eisenhower Special En Route to Chicago, July 5 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrives in Chicago at noon (EST) today — transformed almost overnight into a fighting-mad presidential candidate.

This was the "new Ike" to his lieutenants. He had decided to step down into the cockpit of politics to slug it out with Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the GOP presidential nomination.

He hadn't planned it that way. He had hoped to campaign on national policies and broad issues without getting involved in personalties. He had intended, by his own admission, to remain aloof from the bare knuckles of national convention maneuvers.

But then came the change. He watched the GOP National Committee, dominated by Taft forces, toss out most of his disputed convention delegates in favor of Taft delegates. He got mad and began slugging.

Force Is Charged

Eisenhower charged yesterday there was evidence that Taft forces were trying to steamroller the convention and force their will on the people.

He charged "a little group of men" were trying to control the Republican party by throwing out majority rule.

He said the issue was "whether politicians are to be loyal servants or arrogant masters" of the voters who send delegates to the convention.

This change began before the general left Denver two days ago aboard a special train which has rolled across Colorado, Nebraska and Iowa. But with each whistle stop, the general's anger and bitterness over the Chicago developments have become more obvious.

Yesterday the general turned loose, at Denison, Ia., a blast against the Taft people when he said the Chicago nomination fight is "a struggle for honor, decency and respect" in politics.

He charged his opposition was trying to conceal from the American people the reasons that led to "certain decisions" within the party as he lashed out at "star chamber" proceedings.

Later, at Boone, Ia.—the birthplace of Mrs. Eisenhower—the general unleased a double-barrelled assault against Taft and the Truman administration.

Must Not Muff Chance

He said of the Taft camp: "Within the past few days there has been developing very definite evidence that a group of men are going to try to thwart the will of these citizens who elected delegates to the national convenion—they are going to try to take away the birthright of those citizens."

The Republican party, he said, has a chance to "lift off our backs the burden of indecisive leadership by .22 caliber men. We mustn't muff that chance."

Probe Is Ordered

Rabies Clinic Set For Ulster County Starting on July 14

County-wide rabies clinics will be held from July 14 through July 23, it was announced today by Dr. Gilbert F. Hoppenstedt, county veterinarian with the Ulster County Health Department.

He said that all dogs which were not vaccinated last year should be brought to the clinics which will be held from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.

In order for dogs to run loose in the county, Hoppenstedt said, 70 per cent of the dog population must be vaccinated. He pointed out that rabies was still present in Ulster county, now certified by the state as a county in which rabies exists.

"If your dog is not vaccinated," Hoppenstedt stated, "it could have rabies. Although rabies cannot be cured, it can be prevented. Vaccination of dogs is the only thing that will control rabies." He emphasized the importance of having all dogs vaccinated to reduce the possibility of spreading rabies to humans. He explained that if a dog had been vaccinated last year it would not be necessary to vaccinate him this year, that the vaccine immunized for a period of two years.

"All dogs six months or older, and those not vaccinated last year, should be vaccinated at the free rabies clinics this year," he pointed out.

Any local groups, sportsmen's clubs, or anyone else in Ulster county interested in having a group of dogs inoculated, are asked to call the Ulster County Health Department, telephone 5300 to arrange special clinics.

Excelsiors Treat Kiddies at Circus

Yesterday was a glorious 4th of July for Excelsior Hose Company, with two entertainment features on tap, one the Hagen Brothers Circus at Forsyth Park and the other the Coleman shows at Spring Lake.

The circus, a one-day affair pleased patrons at the uptown park, where the evening show played to a large audience, and the afternoon matinee brought one round of applause after the other from children, including groups transported from the Sacred Heart Home, West Park, and the Children's Home, this city.

President William B. Martin was more than pleased with the circus, and the preview he arranged at city hall, where Dixie, the giant elephant went through a routine of stunts for a large gathering of kiddies, including the difficult trick of standing on his head.

Every child that turned out for the morning special received a free ticket to the matinee from President Martin or Alderman-at-Large Joe Kelly, who welcomed them to the event.

The tickets were complimentaries purchased by the merchants of Kingston to whom the fire company extended its sincerest appreciation for their generosity in entertaining the home children.

This afternoon the children from the two homes were to be guests of Excelsior Hose at the Coleman Shows to enjoy free rides. Tonight is the last for this attraction sponsored by the volunteer firemen.

Excelsiors Treat Kiddies at Circus

Yesterday was a glorious 4th of July for Excelsior Hose Company, with two entertainment features on tap, one the Hagen Brothers Circus at Forsyth Park and the other the Coleman shows at Spring Lake.

The circus, a one-day affair pleased patrons at the uptown park, where the evening show played to a large audience, and the afternoon matinee brought one round of applause after the other from children, including groups transported from the Sacred Heart Home, West Park, and the Children's Home, this city.

President William B. Martin was more than pleased with the circus, and the preview he arranged at city hall, where Dixie, the giant elephant went through a routine of stunts for a large gathering of kiddies, including the difficult trick of standing on his head.

Every child that turned out for the morning special received a free ticket to the matinee from President Martin or Alderman-at-Large Joe Kelly, who welcomed them to the event.

The tickets were complimentaries purchased by the merchants of Kingston to whom the fire company extended its sincerest appreciation for their generosity in entertaining the home children.

This afternoon the children from the two homes were to be guests of Excelsior Hose at the Coleman Shows to enjoy free rides. Tonight is the last for this attraction sponsored by the volunteer firemen.

Plans Saugerties Stop On 130-Mile Swim

Hudson, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—Husky Gene Texeira planned to reach Saugerties today on the third hitch of his 130-mile, Albany-New York swim.

Texeira, 18, started his long-distance swim at Albany Thursday and reached Castleton that night. He had covered a total of about 27 miles when he climbed out of the Hudson river here last night. The 16-mile swim from Castleton took five hours and 40 minutes.

The Fall River, Mass., youth is making the swim as preparation for a try at the English Channel. His schedule calls for him to cover 18 to 20 miles in about six hours of swimming each day.

His coach, Harry Boudakian of Fall River, is accompanying him in a rowboat.

Calls for Inquiry

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Sen. H. Humphrey called today for an immediate Senate inquiry into campaign spending by presidential aspirants of both major parties. The Minnesota Democrat announced he is introducing a bill to provide for such an investigation. He also wrote a Senate Elections Subcommittee headed by Sen. Gillette (D-Ia.) — which would conduct the inquiry—that: "Many Americans are seriously disturbed by the charges of political deals, 'stealing' of delegates, 'smear literature,' use of patronage and the like, being made today by many of the presidential candidates and their supporters."

Guests a Carnival

Children from the Sacred Heart Orphanage at West Park and the Children's Home in Kingston were guests at the Coleman Brothers shows at Spring Lake Park today from 1 o'clock until 5:30 o'clock. Everything was free with ice cream and soft drinks at the close of the festivities. Acting Mayor Joseph Kelly welcomed the children and was host. At 5 o'clock and again tonight the Alcidos' free act will be staged. The shows will conclude their stay here after the evening performances. More than 7,000 admissions were recorded on the Fourth of July afternoon and evening. The shows are sponsored by Excelsior Hose Company.

Hits Taft, Ike

Chicago, July 5 (AP)—Former Congressman Vito Marcantonio of New York told the Progressive party's national convention today that President Truman wants civil rights "only as an issue" and not as law. He accused the Truman administration of "shameful double-dealing" on civil rights in the 81st Congress and said that Republican senators, including Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, "gave their aid." Marcantonio declared that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower belongs on "the dunce stool" for "confessed ignorance" on civil rights. Thus he belabored the two major contenders for the Republican presidential nomination.

Won't Take Veep Post

Denver, July 5 (AP)—California Gov. Earl Warren said last night, "I will refuse the vice presidential nomination if it is offered to me." The Republican leader told a reporter he is interested only in the party's nomination for president. He repeated that he will release the California delegation with its 70 votes to vote "according to its own conscience" only when "I see I have no chance for the nomination."

Congress Is . . .

The House whipped through and left final action to the Senate on a $1,015,000,000 bill to finance the State, Justice and Commerce Departments.

Eisenhower Leaders Confer

No to Taft Offer to Split Delegates

Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. (striped tie, gesturing), campaign manager for Gen. Eisenhower, tells reporters July 4, that he has rejected an offer by Sen. Robert A. Taft to split the contested delegates to the Republican national convention. Taft suggested that 22 of the 38 distributed votes be cast for him and 16 for Eisenhower. Which Texas delegate faction was to be accredited concerned the GOP national committee. (AP Wirephoto).

Taft Surge . . .

has handed down decision in 96 contests—and the bulk of the winners are for Taft. But Sprague said that even so the Lodge motion would carry by 50 votes.

Would Help Ike

This would put the Eisenhower forces in a much better position when the question of seating the contested delegates came up, first in the convention's credentials committee and then in the convention itself.

Under Lodge's rules change, credentials committee members from states where there are contests could not vote. Sprague said this, in effect, would change the complexion of the committee, giving Eisenhower a one-vote margin in it.

It would also improve the Eisenhower chances in the convention itself.

Thomas E. Coleman of Wisconsin, Taft's floor manager, said he supposed he ought to be feeling nervous now "but I'm not—I think Taft's in."

Mac for Vice President

Taft himself gave a boost to the idea that Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the convention keynoter, might become his vice presidential running mate.

The Ohio senator said he was told that MacArthur "will not reject such a proposal."

MacArthur has planned to fly to Chicago for his keynote speech, unaccompanied by his wife, and to return immediately thereafter to New York.

Rep. Hugh Scott, Jr., an Eisenhower backer, said on a radio program (CBS) last night that MacArthur is "very receptive" to the presidential nomination but he can't get it.

300th Anniversary

a century, yet it is hard to realize the great influence our own area has exerted upon the art world until a collection of this sort is assembled.

Robert G. Wheeler, director of the Albany Institute of History and Art, is lending to the Kingston Art Show a group of representative works which were assembled earlier this year for exhibit in The Netherlands. Unsettled conditions in Europe influenced a decision not to risk this priceless collection in an overseas showing. Therefore, Kingston is to see them instead.

Included among the Albany collection is one of the very few authenticated works of Pieter Vanderlyn. Pieter Vanderlyn, was Dutch sea surgeon who settled in Kingston in the 17th century and turned his hand to portraiture. One of the earliest and most sought after of the early American primitives, his authenticated works are almost rare today. The subject of his portrait is the wife of one of Kingston's early Dutch Dominies, the ancestress of a great many Kingston residents of today.

The art show, after the opening night, will be open between 11 a. m. and 9 p. m., everyday until August 17. A great deal of advance interest has been manifested by out-of-towners in the show and it is anticipated that the city will play host to many visitors who will journey here expressly to visit the exhibition.

Multiple Residence Forms Now Available

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy announced today that he had received registration blanks to be filled out by owners of multiple residences as required by state law.

He said that all owners of multiple residences must register. Blanks may be obtained at the Central Fire Station.

The first kindergarten was set up in 1837.

May Try for Vote

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Majority Leader McFarland of Arizona said he may try to get a Senate vote today on a bill authorizing states in the Great Lakes area to enter into compacts on navigation and power projects connected with the St. Lawrence river waterway. Those favoring the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project introduced the state compact measure recently after a bill authorizing direct federal participation in the 800 million dollar project had been shelved.

Holiday Death Toll Is Nearing 300 Mark

(By The Associated Press)

The toll of violent deaths during the July 4th holiday weekend edged toward 300 today, bringing only one glimmer of encouragement—the nation appeared to be winning its campaign against careless use of fireworks.

Only two deaths—in a total of 276—were caused by fireworks. Traffic accidents accounted for 168 fatalities, while drownings took 81 lives and 25 persons died in miscellaneous accidents during the first 37 hours of the three-day weekend.

The traffic toll was running ahead of the comparable Memorial Day weekend of 1952—when 363 persons died in auto mishaps. It was almost keeping pace with the National Safety Council's forecast of 430 traffic deaths during the weekend period—from 6 p. m. Thursday to midnight Sunday (local time).

Fire School Monday

All volunteer firemen interested in fire training are asked to report to the Central Fire Station at 7:30 p. m. Monday, July 7, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said today.

Plans Saugerties Stop On 130-Mile Swim

Hudson, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—Husky Gene Texeira planned to reach Saugerties today on the third hitch of his 130-mile, Albany-New York swim.

Texeira, 18, started his long-distance swim at Albany Thursday and reached Castleton that night. He had covered a total of about 27 miles when he climbed out of the Hudson river here last night. The 16-mile swim from Castleton took five hours and 40 minutes.

The Fall River, Mass., youth is making the swim as preparation for a try at the English Channel. His schedule calls for him to cover 18 to 20 miles in about six hours of swimming each day.

His coach, Harry Boudakian of Fall River, is accompanying him in a rowboat.

Calls for Inquiry

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Sen. H. Humphrey called today for an immediate Senate inquiry into campaign spending by presidential aspirants of both major parties. The Minnesota Democrat announced he is introducing a bill to provide for such an investigation. He also wrote a Senate Elections Subcommittee headed by Sen. Gillette (D-Ia.) — which would conduct the inquiry—that: "Many Americans are seriously disturbed by the charges of political deals, 'stealing' of delegates, 'smear literature,' use of patronage and the like, being made today by many of the presidential candidates and their supporters."

Guests a Carnival

Children from the Sacred Heart Orphanage at West Park and the Children's Home in Kingston were guests at the Coleman Brothers shows at Spring Lake Park today from 1 o'clock until 5:30 o'clock. Everything was free with ice cream and soft drinks at the close of the festivities. Acting Mayor Joseph Kelly welcomed the children and was host. At 5 o'clock and again tonight the Alcidos' free act will be staged. The shows will conclude their stay here after the evening performances. More than 7,000 admissions were recorded on the Fourth of July afternoon and evening. The shows are sponsored by Excelsior Hose Company.

Hits Taft, Ike

Chicago, July 5 (AP)—Former Congressman Vito Marcantonio of New York told the Progressive party's national convention today that President Truman wants civil rights "only as an issue" and not as law. He accused the Truman administration of "shameful double-dealing" on civil rights in the 81st Congress and said that Republican senators, including Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, "gave their aid." Marcantonio declared that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower belongs on "the dunce stool" for "confessed ignorance" on civil rights. Thus he belabored the two major contenders for the Republican presidential nomination.

Won't Take Veep Post

Denver, July 5 (AP)—California Gov. Earl Warren said last night, "I will refuse the vice presidential nomination if it is offered to me." The Republican leader told a reporter he is interested only in the party's nomination for president. He repeated that he will release the California delegation with its 70 votes to vote "according to its own conscience" only when "I see I have no chance for the nomination."

The House whipped through and left final action to the Senate on a $1,015,000,000 bill to finance the State, Justice and Commerce Departments.

Eisenhower Leaders Confer

No to Taft Offer to Split Delegates

Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. (striped tie, gesturing), campaign manager for Gen. Eisenhower, tells reporters July 4, that he has rejected an offer by Sen. Robert A. Taft to split the contested delegates to the Republican national convention. Taft suggested that 22 of the 38 distributed votes be cast for him and 16 for Eisenhower. Which Texas delegate faction was to be accredited concerned the GOP national committee. (AP Wirephoto).

Taft Surge . . .

has handed down decision in 96 contests—and the bulk of the winners are for Taft. But Sprague said that even so the Lodge motion would carry by 50 votes.

Would Help Ike

This would put the Eisenhower forces in a much better position when the question of seating the contested delegates came up, first in the convention's credentials committee and then in the convention itself.

Under Lodge's rules change, credentials committee members from states where there are contests could not vote. Sprague said this, in effect, would change the complexion of the committee, giving Eisenhower a one-vote margin in it.

It would also improve the Eisenhower chances in the convention itself.

Thomas E. Coleman of Wisconsin, Taft's floor manager, said he supposed he ought to be feeling nervous now "but I'm not—I think Taft's in."

Mac for Vice President

Taft himself gave a boost to the idea that Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the convention keynoter, might become his vice presidential running mate.

The Ohio senator said he was told that MacArthur "will not reject such a proposal."

MacArthur has planned to fly to Chicago for his keynote speech, unaccompanied by his wife, and to return immediately thereafter to New York.

Rep. Hugh Scott, Jr., an Eisenhower backer, said on a radio program (CBS) last night that MacArthur is "very receptive" to the presidential nomination but he can't get it.

300th Anniversary

a century, yet it is hard to realize the great influence our own area has exerted upon the art world until a collection of this sort is assembled.

Robert G. Wheeler, director of the Albany Institute of History and Art, is lending to the Kingston Art Show a group of representative works which were assembled earlier this year for exhibit in The Netherlands. Unsettled conditions in Europe influenced a decision not to risk this priceless collection in an overseas showing. Therefore, Kingston is to see them instead.

Included among the Albany collection is one of the very few authenticated works of Pieter Vanderlyn. Pieter Vanderlyn, was Dutch sea surgeon who settled in Kingston in the 17th century and turned his hand to portraiture. One of the earliest and most sought after of the early American primitives, his authenticated works are almost rare today. The subject of his portrait is the wife of one of Kingston's early Dutch Dominies, the ancestress of a great many Kingston residents of today.

The art show, after the opening night, will be open between 11 a. m. and 9 p. m., everyday until August 17. A great deal of advance interest has been manifested by out-of-towners in the show and it is anticipated that the city will play host to many visitors who will journey here expressly to visit the exhibition.
